16-20 Yrs. For Granito In Holdup

Samuel S. Granito, 38, of Brooklyn, found guilty a week ago of armed robbery in the $110,000 Sturtevant Blower Plant payroll holdup in Hyde Park last Oct. 30, was sentenced to 16 to 20 years in State Prison today by Judge Felix Forte in Suffolk Superior Court.

Although he had been forewarned a week ago by Judge Forte's comment that the judge thought he needed protection from himself, the convicted man sagged in the dock and turned ashy pale as Judge Forte pronounced the sentence.

Samuel Granito

For the moment he was near collapse, then he recovered himself and walked from the courtroom, leaning heavily on the arm of a court officer.

RECORD CITED

Pronouncement of sentence came after Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Granito, had spoken for nearly an hour. He reviewed Granito's life and said at present he was suffering from ulcers and incipient tuberculosis and might not survive a long sentence.

He reviewed the defendant's service in the Merchant Marine for three years during the war and told how he had received a commendation for gallantry when his explosive-laden ship was attacked by an enemy craft.

But Judge Forte, reviewing his record, pointed out again that he had handled guns through most of his adult life and was fortunate he was not facing the electric chair. He pointed out that he had served time in Sing Sing and Charlestown and was described by the New York department of correction as a neuropathic personality.

WASTED LIFE

"Your whole life has been wasted," Judge Forte said to Granito. "I am convinced that you must be removed to where you will be protected from yourself and society protected from you. I hope this sentence will serve as a warning to others and as a deterrent to them against entering a life of crime."

Granito was under heavy guard in the courtroom throughout the proceedings. In addition to five court officers who were grouped around him, there were three Boston police officers on duty.

He was taken downstairs from the courtroom and, after only a few minutes wait, was placed in a van and removed to the State Prison.

Big 4 Discuss Levy on Austria

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP)—The three western powers insisted separately today that Big Four demands in Austria be kept within the country's ability to pay.

The United States, Great Britain and France made their positions plain at a meeting of deputy foreign ministers. They were seeking, with Russia, a peace formula for the land-locked republic freed from Hitler's Germany.

Student Governor In Plea for UMT

Universal Military Training is the nation's greatest need, Massachusetts' student governor said today in his inaugural address at a joint assembly of 280 students and representatives from high schools who took over reins of state government for a day.

William Nichols, 17-year-old Weston High School student, was governor as Good Government Day was observed.

In urging universal military training, Gov. Nichols asserted:

"We must realize that democracy must not fail, as it is the one hope to which helpless minorities cling.

"Until the whole world has agreed to lay down its arms and turn to peaceful ways, we must be strong," the young chief executive told the student legislators and department heads. "In the event of another war, we must not overlook the fact that possibly the period of warning before the attack will be short and the period in which to train our forces will be inadequate.

"Our regular standing Army supplemented by a large group of partly trained manpower would be our best program. May I call to your attention, also, certain individual and personal advantages gained from military training, such as broader education, better physical condition, vocational training, plus an added year of maturity.

"We must admit that the United States is not as potent from a military point of view as she was three years ago when the war ended. We have become practically demilitarized. We also find ourselves the only major power in the world without compulsory military training.

"I recommend that this student legislature go on record as favoring universal military training, and that copies of this resolution be transmitted to Congress."

The student Governor also recommended permitting women to serve on juries and defeat of the bill lowering the voting age to 18 years. Gov. Nichols' address to the joint assembly preceded four joint hearings held during the morning session on universal military training, women jurors, biennial sessions and voting at 18.

The student government's legislative committee on constitutional law voted for universal military training, 9 to 6.

Eire's Premier Tells Plans in Phone Talk

By ELGAR BROWN

Copyright, 1948, by the Boston Evening American

Under its first new leadership in 16 years, Eire will slash government spending, encourage agricultural pursuits and assume an active role in the world effort for permanent peace. Prime Minister John A. Costello, fresh from his victory over the veteran Eamon De Valera, told me today, in an exclusive, transatlantic telephone interview, dedicated to Greater Boston's 500,000 residents of Irish descent.

Seated in Dublin and enjoying every minute of his contact with Boston, the 56-year-old lawyer and former attorney general, third Irish premier and first head of a coalition government, said:

"Tell all my countrymen and all their descendants in Boston that they are an inspiration to us.

ADMIRE U. S.

"Tell them we of the old country respect their courageous spirit, admire the great land of their adoption, and strive to emulate the love of justice and individual freedom which has made of America a powerful friend to us all.

"Assure them that myself and my new cabinet—a very satisfactory cross - section of delegates from Eire's many divergent interests—will labor to weld a united nation able to stand on its own feet but eager to co-operate with the world."

His rich brogue came clearly across the intervening miles. He spoke readily, forcefully, without the cagy hesitation so typical of many politicians.

His comment on the new leadership's determination to trim the nation's economic sails seemed less a disclosure of plans than a criticism of his predecessor.

"What happened over there," I had asked, "that your people turned out the New York-born De Valera after so many years at the helm?"

"The main criticism of De Valera," said Premier Costello, "was that he spent government funds with a too lavish hand.

EIRE TO ECONOMIZE

"The staggering cost of government in Eire lately was a factor in his defeat. We are not toostupid to learn a lesson. We intend to economize. Also, we will spur the development of Irish agriculture."

Remembering that De Valera's long rule was strongly nation-

Prices Suddenly Turn Down Again

By Associated Press

A gradual downward drift in prices suddenly gathered speed today, and midway of the grain session at Chicago wheat fell as much as 6¼ cents a bushel.

Corn fell 2 to 4 cents a bushel below yesterday's close. Oats were 2¼ to 2⅞ cents lower. Soybeans were down 4 to 5 cents.

Cotton ranged unchanged to 35 cents a bale higher.

Hog and cattle prices were steady. Lambs were weak to 50 cents lower.

Wholesale butter prices dropped ½ cent a pound on the top grades at New York.

Cold Weather Due to Return Here Tonight

A rapid plummet of the mercury to the low 20's in Boston tonight will mark a return of seasonal cold to New England the weatherman declared today.

In the aftermath of the balmy spell, the best Boston can expect tomorrow is a high of 35 with brisk northwest winds, he added.

The extended forecast for New England, Saturday through Wednesday, is seasonal cold, giving Boston an average of 32.

OK New Haven 15 P. C. Fare Hike

Permission was granted to the New Haven Railroad today by the State Public Utilities Commission to increase passenger fares by 15 per cent on all its lines within Massachusetts, except the Old Colony division.

The order also provides for a minimum fare of 17 cents.

The Interstate Commerce Commission previously had granted the road permission to increase interstate one-way fares 15 per cent with a minimum fare of 17 cents.

Last month the DPU authorized a 15 per cent increase in basic coach fares on the Old Colony division and approved a boost in commutation rates.

Sues Gould Heiress Wife And Rival for $250,000

William M. Grimditch, Harvard graduate and famed amateur ice skater, today filed suit in Phoenix, Ariz., naming his socialite wife, a great granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, railroad tycoon, and the son of a prominent Phoenix banker as defendants in a $250,000 action in which he charged misconduct. The Harvard man's complaint charges Gioia B. Grimditch, whose mother was Gloria Gould, a glamor girl of the last generation, and Blake Brophy, son of Frank C. Brophy of Phoenix, with wilful moral misconduct on several specific dates during 1946 and "at other times." The suit alleges that they contrived to defraud the plaintiff of his rights as a husband.

In his complaint, filed in the U. S. District Court in Phoenix, Grimditch declares his wife has a personal estate valued in excess of $750,000. She recently filed suit for divorce.

MARRIED IN 1943

Grimditch is the son of William Henry Grimditch, Sr., vice-president of the Hazeltine Electronics Corp., of New York city, and a former vice-president of the Philco Radio Corporation. His parents who live at Rydal, near Philadelphia, are not listed in the Social Register.

He and the former Gioia Gloria Barker were married in a colorful ceremony in the chapel of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York city, in May 1943. Two years earlier, just before he entered the Army, Grimditch won nationwide fame when he captured the U. S. Junior Skating crown.

HAVE ONE CHILD

Grimditch's career at Harvard was interrupted by his war service. He returned to the school of business administration in 1946 and was graduated last November, with a master's degree. At Cambridge he lived in Mellon Hall and continued active in skating. He is now in law school at the University of Pennsylvania.

He and his wife have one child, a daughter, born two years after their marriage. For a time, the family lived near an Army camp where he was stationed as a lieutenant.

Cambridge Holdup Suspect Eludes Trap

Dodging a police trap, a 37-year-old Cambridge ex-convict, and one of the smoke-bomb gunmen wanted in the $50,000 Harvard Co-operative Society holdup, sped away from his North Cambridge home today and escaped despite road blocks thrown by a dozen communities.

The suspect, one of three gunmen still sought in the daring Cambridge holdup, fled in a tan colored automobile bearing Florida registration plates—apparently becoming suspicious when he spotted police cruisers in the area.

Ben Tilley

Roaring down Huron ave., the ex-convict, outdistanced Cambridge police. Radio calls summoned squad cars into action in Boston, Somerville, Belmont, Watertown and many other communities along possible escape routes.

This suspect not only was being sought in Cambridge at the time he arrived home but also in New York, where $5000 more of the loot was found in a safe deposit box and in Florida.

It is believed he had been in Florida with Anthony Novicki, 30, of Schiller rd., Dedham, ex-Army paratrooper who police charge is the expert who tossed the smoke bombs which made the Co-op holdup a success.

Novicki, arrested at Miami airport after a terrifie battle with three police officers, is being held in $100,000 in Dade County jail. Held in $10,000 each are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Tilley, Commonwealth ave., Allston, who were arrested with him.

Novicki was trapped as he arrived at the airport with Mrs. Tilley to greet her husband, who was flying there, police said, to "bail out" Novicki, who had been plunging at the race track and spending lavishly in Miami night clubs.

Fugitive warrants for the trio were signed today in East Cambridge court by Judge Arthur P. Stone.

The warrants, charging Novicki with armed robbery and the Tilleys with being accessories after the fact, were handed to Lt. Joseph P. Breen and Insp. Frederick Marckini, who will take them by plane to Miami.

On the five now held, authorities have set high bail aggregating $360,000. In addition to the $100,000 on Novicki and the $10,000 each on the two Tilleys, Nick Mavrides, Cambridge night spot operator, is held in bail of $60,000, double sureties, with the same amount fixed on Jack Lewis of Boston.

Police charge that Mavrides scooped the $50,000 loot into a sack during the Harvard Co-op holdup, and that Lewis was the switch car operator who waited some distance away.

She Collapses Telling Police Of Injuries

A 26-year-old woman, her clothing torn and covered with blood, entered Lynn Police headquarters early today and collapsed at the booking desk.

Taken to Lynn Hospital, the woman recovered long enough to identify herself as Margaret Ledger, Church st., Lynn, but lapsed into hysterical sobbing when police attempted to question her.

At the hospital doctors said the woman had long deep scratches on her abdomen and left shoulder and reported bits of gravel were found in her mouth.

Inspector Horace L. Hill was assigned to investigate to determine if she was the victim of an attack.

The housing shortage was grimly illustrated today when a Navy veteran, his Irish war bride and their two children were found living in a nine-by-twelve foot converted garage in Waltham.

Building Inspector William W. Stokes said no permit had been or would be issued for use of the garage as a dwelling, but he would not force the tenants to abandon it until they found better quarters.

Melvin C. Aiken, who served four years in the Navy, and who is employed as a machinist, said he paid $40 a month for the garage. He said his wife expects another baby within a few months. Their two children are Gertrude, 3, and Melvin, Jr., 1.

Bobo's Love Story At Perfect Climax

By CHARLES FINSTON
Copyright, 1948, by the Chicago Herald-American

When Barbara (Bobo) Sears quit Hollywood in 1946, after 2½ years of mild success, she hoped to establish a home for her husband, Richard Sears, Jr., who had returned from naval service in the South Pacific.

This is the final chapter of the true-life Cinderella story of Eva Paul, daughter of a Lithuanian immigrant family, who was born in a Pennsylvania coal mine district and married multi-millionaire Winthrop Rockefeller, a story that could only happen in America.

Bobo was nearly 30. She took inventory of her career on the stage and screen, after 13 years of industrious effort, and found the vertical line to "Golden Gate" stardom had been blunted.

Little did Bobo realize even then she was about to star in a role that was greater and more beautiful than any Hollywood had to offer, as the Cinderella bride of multi-millionaire oil heir, Winthrop Rockefeller.

Bobo looked back over five years of marriage to Sears, a quiet, refined gentleman, with a distinguished background as member of one of Boston's most revered families, whose ancestry dated back to Colonial days.

When they married in February, 1941, Sears was on the staff of the National Resources Planning Board in Washington. Their first apartment was in the Capital. Later they had a flat in New York, and after he entered the service, a small house in Quonsett, R. I.

In between there were more hotels, with occasional visits to the imposing brownstone mansion of Mrs. Richard Sears, Sr., at 229 Beacon st., Boston, or at the family summer estate called Greystone on Labor-in-Vain, Ipswich, Mass.

The maternal urge, a natural heritage derived from the peasant soil of Lithuania, whence her immigrant parents had come at the turn of the century, gnawed her even more fiercely than her early stage ambitions.

Bobo's unaffected natural charm and culture, her vivacious blonde beauty, her fetish for simple clothes, her dislike for hats and ornate jewelry, and numerous other attributes, won her an endearing niche in the top ranks of society.

She won the affection of her mother-in-law as "becomingly domestic." She whipped up tasty dinners and kept her abode spic and span during the period of maid shortages, a trait she developed during her hard youthful days in Chicago's "Back of the Yards" district, after her parents arrived there from Lithuania.

Thus when young Sears returned from overseas service, Bobo was ready to settle down, and possibly have a family. But Sears had a career to carve in the U. S. Diplomatic Service. He was sent to the U. S. embassy in Paris as third secretary.

Bobo lingered behind, somewhat jolted by the thought of moving again. She sought solace and gayety with her new top circle friends, including Mrs. Elizabeth A. (Liz) Whitney, ex-wife of millionaire Jock Whitney; Lucy

Attorney Offers Reward For Missing Fix Witness

By CASPER T. DORFMAN

As a shocked public awaited action by Municipal Court on a Boston Bar Association recommendation it crack down on "fixers," venal lawyers and fee-splitting cops, a prominent member of the Massacchusetts Bar Association offered a $50 reward for information leading to apprehension of a mysterious missing witness in a notorious fix case.

The attorney, who asked anonymity for the moment, made his offer through the Boston American. He added:

"This is a case typical of those alluded to in the Boston Bar Ass'n's report.

"Justice hangs in the balance until the witness is found."

The man sought is Joseph Sessions, formerly of Dover st. He is not wanted for any crime. He was a witness in a municipal court case wherein a minor defendant paid money to a fixer. The fixer was sentenced to nine months. He appealed. The witness, who was to have testified against him in superior court, vanished.

Judge Elijah Adlow, who presided in lower court, bitterly commented at the time:

"I am going to see to it, if I can, that poor, ignorant people are not trimmed by parasites in these corridors. It's tough to see men clipped by civilians and sometimes by lawyers.

"I don't blame police for being outraged. Men who are trying hard to do their duty are being sold up and down the town."

DENIAL BY SULLIVAN

Former Judge Jacob J. Kaplan, president of the association, forwarded the charges to Chief Justice Keniston a week ago, asking for a thorough investigation and housecleaning with punishment for any found guilty of complicity in the scandal.

Chief Justice Keniston told newspapermen today, for the third time in 24 hours, he had "no comment." He added:

"I haven't even acknowledged receipt of any report yet."

Then he said he would have something to say—"but not now." Asked if he had appointed any judge to make the investigation urged by the Bar Ass'n, he repeated, "No comment."

First to deny that any jail employes had participated in the alleged racket was Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan, who with Deputy Sheriff James J. Mellen visited Kaplan to deny charges that certain lawyers had been permitted to solicit business from persons in the jail awaiting trial.

"No such thing goes on at the jail," Sullivan told newsmen as he left Kaplan's office.

The charges involve not only lawyers who have been allegedly shaking down defendants, but also

Ayer Freight Wreck Ties B & M Tracks

In the worst freight derailment in Massachusetts in several years, 17 cars of a 90-car Boston-bound freight train left the rails in Ayer today—tearing up 300 feet of rails and roadbed and halting completely all movement on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine.

The four-man crew of the lengthy train all suffered slight injuries.

The wreck disrupted through service on the line and forced delays in commuter schedules, which were carried out by the installation of an emergency shuttle bus service between Fitchburg and Ayer.

Meanwhile, two Diesel wreckers and emergency workers from Boston and East Deerfield were rushed to the scene to remove the smashed cars and restore the roadbed and ripped-out rails.

B. & M. officials announced at noon that temporary through service had been restored—with some delays—through use of the Ft. Devens siding while crews worked to repair the main line.

The shuttle bus service enabled commuters from Fitchburg, Leominster and Shirley to reach Boston with some delay. Commuters from Acton, Concord, Waltham and Belmont were not seriously delayed since most of their trains are made up at Acton.

Officials expected repairs would be completed tonight and normal service restored tomorrow morning. An investigation is being conducted into the accident, believed to have been caused by a broken rail.

Both tracks were twisted and torn like ticker tape from a long distance on both sides of the Ft. Devens siding, about a mile west of Ayer depot. Some cars were overturned on the roadbed; others were scattered down an embankment, some coming to rest 50 feet into a marsh.

The train carried box cars, coal and oil cars and flat cars. Included in the cargo was coal, oil, automobile axles and accessories and general merchandise.

Four cars loaded with coal overturned, spilling thousands of tons of coal across the tracks, while two boxcars loaded with barrels of precious oil plunged down an embankment.

The train crew later brought the front end of the freight to Boston.

The derailed cars were in the middle of the freight and the rear end and caboose were hauled back into East Fitchburg yards. The train left Rotterdam, N. Y., yesterday.

Surgery Provides Hip Joints to Wife Crippled 23 Years

By ROBERT GREEN

One day soon a very brave and pretty girl named Alice is going to step through a Massachusetts General Hospital exit into the wonderland of normal, joyful living.

The miracle of modern surgery and a fighting heart as big as the outdoors itself have brought Mrs. Alice Copeland Tregurtha from crippled infancy through pain-wracked adolescence and young adulthood to the threshold of a new life of health and activity.

Today, in her bed, Alice cheerfully reviewed the years she has spent in this orthopedic ward and similar wards of other hospitals undergoing the 21 complex operations that have provided her with new hip sockets.

HAD 21 OPERATIONS

Nature played a cruel trick on the second youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brenard Copeland of Clinton st., Malden. She was born without hip sockets, causing an ever-present dislocation.

At two and a half years old, Alice made her first acquaintance with hospitals. On Jan. 20 of this year she celebrated her 23d birthday and 21st operation at the Mass. General Hospital. During the intervening years she has spent from eight weeks to as long as nine months in one hospital or another.

Alice claims it wasn't hard to find courage to endure the long weeks with her legs encased in tractions, splints or other assorted tortures incident to her many operations.

"Everybody has been wonderful to me," she explained. "The doctors, nurses, aides, all loaned me some of their courage. Then my family has been so good and patient with me that it wasn't possible for me to have lacked faith and courage.

"With so many grand people pulling for you, you can't miss. I just forgot time, and now the doctors say that six months after I walk out of here I can throw away my crutches for good.

"The thing I want to do most is dance. I want to dance every kind of a dance there is, and maybe make up a few new ones myself. I think only a person who has lost the use of his legs can really appreciate how I feel about this.

"Then of course I want to do all the things I was never able to do as a schoolgirl. I'll roller-skate and ice-skate, ski and just plain run and jump for the fun of it. My poor husband will certainly have his days cut out for him."

Mrs. Tregurtha said she figured she owed the Mass. General a double debt of gratitude since it was through a hospital aide that she met her husband. He is Edward Tregurtha, a window decorator for a downtown Boston department store. They were married Aug. 5, 1945, and have their own apartment in Summer st., Malden.

WANTS TO BE AIDE

Alice said she was proud of the way her husband and her parents and sisters had borne up during her long hospital stays. She says the ordeal was greater for them than for her, because she always knew just what she was facing and what the outcome would be.

Her doctor has promised her she can serve as a special observer at some future hip operation because of the interest she has shown in her own operations. She in turn has promised to devote some of her free time serving as a hospital aide.

Although some treatment is still necessary, Alice for all purposes has two perfectly good hip joints now. They are made of tantalum, a rare, light but tough metal, used in many instances to replace bone shattered by accident or removed surgically because of disease.

MISS BALLENTINE AND SON
She Wins Suit for Support

$1500 Monthly To DeSylva's Girl Aide, Son

SANTA MONICA Cal., Feb. 20 (AP)—Film Producer George (Buddy) De Sylva must pay $750 a month for support of his illegitimate son, three - year - old Stephen William Ballentine.

Buddy De Sylva

Superior Judge Stanley Mosk yesterday ordered De Sylva to continue previously - contracted payments of $500 a month to Miss Marie Ballentine, 33, the boy's mother and De Sylva's former secretary.

Of that amount, Miss Ballentine was directed to place $100 a month in trust for the boy until March 10, 1949. De Sylva was ordered to place an additional $250 a month in trust for the same period.

After March, 1949, payments to Miss Ballentine will be reduced to $400 a month and DeSylva thereafter must pay $350 a month to the trust account until 1965, when the boy reaches 21.

De Sylva, 52, who began his career as a song writer, asked the $500 payments provided in a contract in 1945 be cut to $350 a month. Miss Ballentine, in a cross-complaint, sought $1575 a month.

Judge Mosk ordered De Sylva to pay Miss Ballentine's lawyers $21,000 in fees.

The judge criticized Miss Ballentine for "wanton and profligate extravagance" in the handling of money given her by De Sylva to support herself and the child.

Commenting on her request for $1575 a month, Judge Mosk said:

"The defendant has suggested needs of the minor wholly unreasonable even for the son of a millionaire. The excessive demands of the defendant suggest the possibility that funds sought for the minor might be used to satisfy her own luxurious whims."

Bank Theft Case Bookie Fined $500

Arrested during the probe into a Somerville bank teller's confession of having embezzled $9800, Cornelius P. O'Brien, 34, of Putnam st., Somerville, today pleaded guilty in Middlesex Superior Court to charges of setting up and promoting a lottery and registering bets.

O'Brien was fined $500, given a suspended three-month sentence, and placed on probation for one year.

The defendant was arrested when Eugene MacCalmon, 42, of Ardley rd., Winchester, former teller at the Somerville National Bank, confessed to embezzlement of funds and told police he had made bets on horse and dog races with O'Brien. MacCalmon was recently indicted by the Federal grand jury in the theft.

Truck Robbed Of $3000 Cigarets

Thieves who had apparently watched the driver's movements today stole a truck from in front of a Kendall sq., Cambridge, building and abandoned it 10 minutes later after having looted it of 15 cases of cigarets valued at $3000.

Harvey Turner of Pinckney st., Somerville, driver for the Old Colony Motor Lines of Cambridge, told police the truck was stolen while he was making a delivery. He said it carried a miscellaneous load valued at approximately $10,000.

A short time later the truck was found on Fifth st.

Mother of 2 Dying In Two-Story Fall

A South Boston mother of two was critically injured in a plunge from her second-floor home in Trimount pl. early today.

Mrs. Helen Donahue, 38, suffered fractures of the skull and spine in a 25-foot plunge and was reported near death at City Hospital.

Her husband, Charles, told police she returned home about 1 a. m. after a visit with friends and he heard her moving about in the kitchen. He then heard the crash of glass, he said, and on looking out saw her unconscious form on the ground.

3-5 Yrs. for Plymouth Dad in Beating of Son

BROCKTON, Feb. 20—Charles O. Lindberg, 29, of Summer st., Plymouth, was sentenced to State Prison for 3-to-5 years in superior court today in the brutal beating of his son, Alfred, 9, a lad who quickly was willing to forgive.

Sentenced was passed by Judge Frank E. Smith after the defendant's counsel, Atty. William P. Higgins made an impassioned plea for mercy. Higgins said Lindberg returned from the war after serving creditably in the Pacific to find his wife running around with another man.

C. O. Lindberg

"He tried to keep his four children together after the mother had gone to Boston to live with her paramour," the defense attorney said. "His home tragedy and his nerves broken by war played a part in this. He told me he started beating the boy for running away and something in him snapped."

"That's the classic excuse," Judge Smith said. "There's a lot of these cases. When they are picked up they are able to remember everything right up to the time they snapped."

"INDOMITABLE TEMPER"

The judge read the report of the psychiatrist showing Lindberg was sane, knew the difference between right and wrong and "though of limited intelligence is by no means feeble minded."

"I don't think he had any intent to murder the boy, even though he was indicted for that and pleaded guilty to it," Judge Smith said. "But I can't give him probation or a suspended sentence. He has an indomitable temper. Three to five years in State Prison."

BOY OUT OF DANGER

Lindberg pleaded guilty a week ago when officers displayed two kitchen chairs, broken and blood-stained, as well as photographs of the boy lying unconscious on the floor. Judge Smith then deferred sentence, declaring he wanted to see if the boy would live.

The judge said today he had been informed Alfred was now out of danger and probably would be discharged within a week from Jordan Hospital in Plymouth.

Everett Budget Ups Tax Rate $8

At a special meeting of Everett city officials Mayor James F. Reynolds today submitted his annual budget calling for expenditures of $4,281,869.

The figure, largest in the city's history, is $616,136 greater than last year's budget and is equivalent to an $8 increase in the present tax rate of $33.

Biggest surprise in the mayor's message was a recommendation for pay raises for all ranks in the police and fire departments with the assistant fire chief and police captain receiving increases from $3600 to $4000 annually. Firemen and patrolmen would be increased from $2925 to $3100.

200 Million Cut Demanded In GI Training-for-Fun

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—The Administration called today for a $200,000,000 cut in GI training-for-fun. The budget bureau asked Congress to rewrite the so-called GI Bill of Rights to let the government weed out hobby-seeking veterans.

A report to the lawmakers pointed critically to courses in such things as flying, dancing, music, photography and horsemanship training by mail.

The GI bill allows veterans to go to school or take special training at federal expense. Some 4,500,000 have taken advantage of the measure.

Today's budget bureau report was sent to Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers (R.) of Massachusetts, of the House veterans affairs committee.

Among certain weaknesses and deficiencies in the veteran training program, it listed these:

1—More than 90 per cent of all GI flight training serves no occupational purpose and has no appreciable value for national defense, although it costs $257,000,000 a year for the 118,400 enrolled.

2—Schools offering social and ballroom dancing to the several thousand veterans enrolled, at a cost of more than $400 each, have frankly stressed in many instances the recreational or social aspects. An advertisement was cited. It offered in a few magic hours to make veterans "the darling of the stagline."

3—A survey of photography training courses shows them of little or no value for truly vocational purposes. In one city, where job opportunities in the field were virtually nonexistent, 280 veterans crowded available courses.

4—The chance of an eventual job in music for veterans now taking their first lessons appears to be remote in most cases.

5—There are other courses offered which do not appear to be in accordance with the purpose of the act. As an example, the report cited a correspondence course in applied horsemanship.

Rheumatic Pains?

take this sufferer's advice

Mr. I. K., Wilmington, Del.
Advises every one suffering from pains of Rheumatism — Arthritis—Sciatica—to try Rumal

He says, "God Bless You for RUMAL."

Mr. I. K. of Wilmington, Delaware, writes: "For years I have suffered with agonizing pains of Rheumatism. Nothing seemed to help much. Then a friend of mine suggested that I try a preparation called Rumal. I was skeptical but I had nothing to lose so I sent for a jar. I tried it and am happy to say that I got relief from the very first application. It's a godsend to have Rumal in the house for when those awful pains strike, I'm prepared."

I don't care how long you have been suffering the agonies of rheumatic, arthritic, sciatica, neuralgic pains—I want you to try a remedy that is really good.

It must be good, for it has been bringing blessed palliative relief to thousands of sufferers since 1919—over 28 years.

And the best part is that you don't risk one penny in trying Rumal—you can't lose—only gain by doing it.

Rumal is a compound of 5 powerful ingredients widely known to the medical profession as fast pain relievers. You apply Rumal as directed to the painful area. Soon you feel a glowing, healing warmth as the pains disappear fast.

Tear out this adv. now as a reminder to get a jar of Rumal for $2.00 at one of the Nature Food Centres stores, listed below. Mail orders sent postpaid. Get Rumal now! Guaranteed! If after using 1 jar of Rumal you don't feel that it has helped you, you get your money back.

Girl Pilot, 18, Faces Court as Crash Sequel

Ruth Tansey, 18-year-old flier and former model, of Beede ave., Lynn, who crash landed a monoplane on Route 1-A in Rowley, during a snow squall Friday the Thirteenth, felt the breath of the jinx again today, when she was served with a summons to appear in Salem district court Feb. 24.

Ruth Tansey

Lynn police served it after a complaint against her was signed by Beverly police. The pretty teen-age pilot, who was carrying a passenger when the squall struck, didn't have an "appropriate pilot's license, permit or certification issued by the Civil Aeronautics Authority or other proper authority," it was charged by It. Francis J. Minton of Beverly.

Ruth had a student license but that doesn't authorize the transportation of passengers.

Her passenger was Joseph Catarine of Orlando st., Winthrop, an Eastern Airlines mechanic. They had taken off from Revere airport and were coming back along the Merrimack river at 4:20 p. m. when squall broke. Ruth had little gasoline left. At 4:45, after circling futilely, she brought down the plane in Rowley, wrecking it.

She and Catarina were unhurt.

Ruth is a Civil Air Patrol flier and a member of the Hub Flying Club.

U. S. Tightens Oil Export Control

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —The Commerce Dept. today banned export of crude oil without a license to any foreign country except Canada.

It was the first peacetime imposition of license controls on crude oils. It was also the second action in as many days to bolster scarce supplies of fuel at home by squeezing foreign receivers.

No Actual Home Shortage, Senate Told in Rent Debate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Sen. Cain (R.) of Washington told the Senate today "there is no actual shortage of housing. There is merely a desperate shortage of housing which is for rent."

He spoke as the chamber began considering a bill to continue rent controls 14 months beyond Feb. 29 with some changes from the present law. The measure was written by the Senate banking committee.

Sen. Taft of Ohio, acting Republican leader, told the Senate he hopes to have the control bill passed by Monday at the latest.

Cain said he is willing to bow to the committee's decision to continue controls but believes "the original reason for rent control has now ceased to exist." He said he believes controls have driven many homes out of the rental market.

Earlier, Sen. Flanders (R.) of Vermont, and Bricker (R.) of Ohio predicted the Senate will approve a one-month emergency extension of the present law.

The House banking committee already has approved extending the existing law through March. The House itself will vote on this measure next week.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 20 (AP)—The Veterans Administration, in its latest economy drive, will close branch offices in Attleboro and Pawtucket, R. I., next Thursday, it was announced at the regional office here today.

These offices, which employed a total of 10 full-time employes and one part-time employe, will now be covered by the regional office here.

Rites Monday For Fr. Coyne

Funeral services for Rev. Randall L. Coyne, 46, brother of the Boston Post sports cartoonist Bob Coyne, will be held on Monday, Feb. 23, with a solemn high mass of requiem at Blessed Sacrament Church, Jamaica Plain.

Rt. Rev. Francis A. Burke, pastor of the Blessed Sacrament Church, will celebrate the mass. He will be assisted by Rev. Joseph Manton, C.S.S.R., of Mission Church, Roxbury, as deacon, and Rev. Daniel A. O'Leary of St. Angela's, Mattapan, as subdeacon. On Sunday at 4 p. m. the office of the dead will be said.

Fr. Coyne attended St. John's Seminary and was ordained at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in June, 1933. During his entire priesthood he was stationed at the Blessed Sacrament Church.

Bribe Case Cop Ruling Tuesday

Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan today took under advisement the cases of three policemen charged with improper conduct in making an unauthorized patrol wagon run New Year's morning on which a prisoner's release allegedly was obtained for payment of $20.

A public hearing on charges against Patrolmen Joseph W. Kiley, Jr., Thomas J. Rosebach and Edward Ahern ended this noon after final counsel arguments. All three are charged with making false reports. In addition, Rosebach is accused of soliciting a bribe, and Ahern with accepting it.

Buys Tractor From WAA, Finds It's In Honolulu

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 20 (AP)—Peter Gaalswyk, World War II veteran and farmer at Welcome, Minn., bought a tractor sight-unseen from the War Assets Administration and now he learns the machine is in Honolulu.

Gaalswyk informed WAA he still wants the tractor that cost him $1750. He said a check of railway and steamship companies shows he can have the tractor shipped to Welcome from Hawaii for less money than it would cost to get it directly from the West Coast.

Mother of Six Held In Baby Drowning

ROCKVILLE CENTER, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP)—A mother of six children was held on a murder charge today in the drowning of her 13-months-old son, Kenneth.

The woman, Mrs. Anne Duke, 44, wife of a National Broadcasting Co. engineer, was found kneeling beside a filled bathtub in her home, her head submerged in the water beside the floating body of the dead child. Her wrists had been slashed.

A daughter, Mary Ann, 16, returned home from school and found her mother in the bathroom. Two other children are students at the University of Colorado.

Downtown Los Angeles Jarred by Earthquake

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20—Los Angeles and nearby communities were jolted last night by a sharp earthquake which rattled windows and shook homes but caused no major damage.

The tremor was felt in Santa Monica, Hollywood, Inglewood and Burbank. It jarred buildings in downtown Los Angeles and maintenance workers at the city hall said the 28-story tower swayed.

Bullet for Stray Cat Kills Mother of Nine

REDONDO BEACH, Cal., Feb. 20 (AP)—A mother of nine children is dead because a bullet fired by a neighbor at a stray cat missed its mark and struck her in the head.

The victim, Mrs. Nannie Monroe, 45, was sitting in her kitchen, reading, when she was shot. The neighbor, Elden Lewis, 27, admitted he fired at a cat which had been disturbing his rabbits.

Sennett Sues for $250,000 In Keystone Comedy Takeoff

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1948, by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20—Mack Sennett, creator of the Keystone cops and the bathing beauties, among whom were Gloria Swanson, Mabel Normand and Carole Lombard, will file suit in Los Angeles Superior Court today for $250,000 damages against Monte Proser and Joseph Kitness, producers of the New York musical "High Button Shoes."

Also included as defendants in the action are Stephen Longstreet, author of the book, Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn, composers of the music and lyrics, and George Abbott, production director.

Sennett is charging unauthorized use of his name in connection with the feature production number, "Mack Sennett Ballet."

"High Button Shoes," starring Phil Silvers, is one of the hits of Broadway and one of its most successful acts is the old-fashioned bathing beauties and the Keystone cops—an exact takeoff of the comedies which made Mack Sennett famous.

Mack said today, in telling me about the suit:

"I wasn't even asked for permission to use the Mack Sennett ballet. I created the cops and the bathing costumes of the girls, and they are used exactly as I used them in my comedies. You'd think at least someone would say, 'May I, please?'"

Representing Mack is Harold A. Fendler, who won a case of piracy for Harold Lloyd against Universal. Fendler asked for $1,700,000, the highest amount ever asked in a piracy case. Lloyd, I am reliably informed, was paid over $100,000, although at the time the amount wasn't made public.

Truman Names Jones To Civil Air Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Harold A. Jones, Los Angeles lawyer, was nominated by President Truman today to one of the two vacancies on the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Other nominations sent to the Senate: John C. Wiley, Indiana, to be ambassador to Iran; Monnett B. Davis, Colorado, to be ambassador to Panama; Richard P. Butrick, New York, to be minister to Iceland.

First Atom Power Plant Slated for Long Island

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—The race for the first useful atomic power plant promises to go to the Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island, some time next year.

This race is between the United States, with five known entries, Canada, Britain and France, and Russia regarded as a silent starter.

It was announced today Brookhaven will have a power plant in operation in 1949. It will pass hot air out of an atomic pile to make steam, which in turn will make electricity. The capacity is to be about 2500-horsepower. That juice will be used to run blower and other laboratory apparatus.

This Brookhaven power plant will not pay for itself. It will be built for research, and as a by product of the atomic pile, which also is only for research.

But it will be, if plans go on schedule, the first atomic oven to turn out real power. The other American power projects are at the Argonne laboratory, near Chicago, Schenectady, N. Y., where the General Electric Co. is building the Knolls laboratory for this purpose, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Los Alamos, New Mexico, the atomic bomb plant.

A few weeks ago the Atomic Energy Commission shifted the American power plant center from Oak Ridge to the Argonne laboratory. Up to that time it had been reported frequently that Oak Ridge's Clinton laboratory would have the first atomic power plant in the world.

The delays in atomic power are not all due to producing the nuclear energy. They involve the troubles in separating atomic heat safely from the dangerous radioactivity that created it.

Big-Money-Minded Gunman Spurns $2.67

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Lillian Milne, 51, opened the door of her home to a man posing as a gas meter reader who thrust a gun at her and demanded money. She told him she only had $2.67.

Then, she told police, the man said, "Oh, pooh," and walked away.

12 Terrorists Flee Jerusalem Prison

JERUSALEM, Feb. 20 (INS)—Twelve notorious Jewish terrorists escaped in a spectacular jailbreak today from the Jerusalem central prison.

The break, in which the prisoners dug their way to safety through a long tunnel, occurred as a British naval party boarded an illegal immigrant vessel with 700 Jews aboard.

Nashua Lawyer, Family Of 5 Flee Blazing Home

NASHUA, N. H., Feb. 20—A damage estimate of $7000 was given today in a fire which roared through the home of Atty. and Mrs. Leonard KillKelley in Stevens st.

The blaze had gained great headway before arrival of firemen. Mrs. KillKelley, awakened by smoke, aroused her husband and then escaped with Elizabeth, 6 months. KillKelley fled with Leonard, Jr., 5, and Davon, 3, and a nephew, Thomas KillKelley, Jr., 12.

Georgia Coach Fired, Blames Ku Klux Klan

LAKEVIEW, Ga., Feb. 20 (AP) — Coach Walter Bowland of Lakeview High School said today he had been "fired because I am in opposition to the Ku Klux Klan." Principal John Burks has resigned.

Bowland announced some time ago he had been warned "to leave town or be tarred and feathered." He said he had been informed by Principal Burks that the school's board of trustees voted last night to discharge him, effective tomorrow.

The board of trustees declined to comment.

Burks, who also said he had received threats, reported his resignation was effective next week.

Bowland said threats against him were originally inspired by a fight in the Lakeview gymnasium between himself and Marion Hayes, a student at the University of Chattanooga and former student at Lakeview High.

The fight occurred, Bowland said, when Hayes came into the gym and tried to disrupt basketball practice.

Later, some 18 hooded men lighted a cross in front of the Bowland house while he was away on a basketball trip. His wife kicked over the cross and called the hooded men cowards, Bowland said.

...WHEN WE MADE THE RECORD THAT DUCK WAS HIGHLY EXCITED AND ITS QUACKS WOULD NATURALLY BE SOUNDS OF DANGER!... ...SO I PLAYED THE RECORD OVER IN COBB'S YARD AND IT MADE THE DUCKS FLY AWAY IN ALARM, INSTEAD OF ATTRACTING THEM!

Curley Drops Doyle's Old Job on Island

J. Paul Doyle, replaced state commissioner of correction now seeking reinstatement to his former post as deputy master of Deer Island House of Correction, received a setback today with the announcement by Mayor Curley that the post has been abolished in the interests "of economy and efficient administration."

The mayor's announcement came after a conference with Maxwell B. Grossman, penal institutions commissioner, regarding Doyle's standing under civil service.

Curley said it has been decided that there is no further need at Deer Island for a deputy master in charge of construction and maintenance.

"No construction is contemplated at the house of correction," the mayor said. "And the penal institutions department says that ordinary maintenance work can be efficiently and economically handled by the licensed electrician and carpenter stationed at the island."

Niece-Slaying Case Goes to Jury

TAUNTON, Feb. 20—The case of Charles A. McCarty, 26, of County st., Fall River, accused of slaying his 8-year-old niece, Theresa LaFleur, last Aug. 4, went to a Bristol Superior court jury for deliberation at 1:47 p. m. today.

The case was given to the jurors after Judge Joseph L. Hurley charged them with the responsibility of determining whether McGarty was guilty of first or second degree murder or was innocent.

Prior to receiving the case, the 14-man jury was reduced to 12 men when Walter Skwarlo of Taunton and Stephen Preston of Fall River, who had listened to the evidence for the past five days, were eliminated by lot.

The State charged McGarty had strangled the child to avenge what he considered a slight by her father.

CIO Warns Bridges To Quit Wallace

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP) —The CIO has ordered Harry Bridges either to disavow Henry Wallace's third party or quit as CIO regional director for northern California, it was learned today.

Bridges is one of the CIO's top leaders on the West Coast. He is president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Ex-Addict Tells Of Drug Craving

"Imagine a wild, convulsing twitching in every nerve in your body . . . a craving that would drive you to batter your head against iron walls . . . cut the veins of your wrists."

That, in her own words, is what drug addiction did to Boston-born Beverly Shaw, former vaudeville star and a drug addict for 10 years, who conquered her problem and now is helping others find the road back to a normal, healthy life.

Beverly will tell her inspiring story of surmounting seemingly hopeless odds in the article, "I Was a Drug Addict," in Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Completes 5000-Mile Sail On Pacific in 39-Foot Yawl

HILO, Hawaii, Feb. 20 (AP)—A 68-year-old California mining engineer—alone and without a radio—sailed a frail backyard built yawl to this port from San Francisco.

He is Eugene S. Sheffield, Sr. He arrived at dusk Wednesday after a voyage of about 5000 miles. The airline distance is 1900, but Sheffield sailed far south to avoid wintry gales.

It took him 52 days. The yawl, Peggy, is 39 feet long.

"Nobody but a crazy man would sail the Pacific in January," said Sheffield today. "But on beautiful days, when the sea was bluer than the Mediterranean and seahawks and flying fish were all around, I wouldn't have missed it. It was enchantment."

The voyage fulfilled an ambition of eight years—since he laid the Peggy's keel in his backyard at Napa. The war interrupted construction, but in 1945 he moved the craft to Vallejo and completed the job.

Sheffield slipped out of the Golden Gate Dec. 27.

He said he sailed about eight hours each day. The remainder of his time he spent cooking, sleeping and "keeping her shipshape."

When he ran into squalls, he hauled down the sail and made himself comfortable below.

"I had nothing to do but loaf along," he grinned. "I had a good time."

Mississippi Town Awaits Flood Crest

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 20 (AP)—Snug behind an encircling levee, Greenwood today awaited the crest of a Yazoo River flood wave which has inundated 400,000 acres of Mississippi farm and timberland.

Sandbags have been packed in at danger points throughout the area and National Guardsmen are patrolling the levees to spot any breaks. A predicted crest of 40 feet due here Saturday will, if it reaches that level, be only one-tenth of a foot below 1946's record hight water mark.

U. S. S. MIDWAY AT NAPLES

NAPLES, Feb. 20 (AP)—The U. S. aircraft carrier Midway arrived here today.

Tree's Too High, 'Coon's Too Shy

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20 (AP)—There's a 'coon up a tree not a dozen blocks from City Hall today, and police were called to bring him down.

The tree's too high, the 'coon's to shy, but police hope he'll come down in the sweet by and by.

Two Fliers Tell Of Seeing Fireball

RAPID CITY, S. D., Feb. 20 (AP)—Crews of two B-29 planes said today there was a vapor trail behind a ball of fire before it exploded Wednesday in the sky somewhere near northwest Kansas.

The B-29 fliers said they first saw the fireball, trailing vapor, while 10,000 feet over Limon, Col. They estimated its location as 100 miles southeast of their position.

Capt. Howard B. Berodt, Bennett, Ia., and Lt. Leonard P. Marchese, New York city, piloted the ships. They were on routine flight and returned to their base at Weaver Air Field here.

The fliers said they saw the ball of fire explode. A huge multi-colored ball hung in the sky for a brief time, followed by a dense cloud, the B-29 crewmen reported.

Sees Drafting of Women Possible in Future War

FORT BENNING, Ga., Feb. 20 (AP)—American women may be drafted in any future global war, Maj. Gen. John W. Devine said here yesterday.

"It's possible, we almost came to that in the last war," Devine, Army Ground Forces training chief, added.

CARPENTERS CUT DEMAND

FALL RIVER, Feb. 20—More than 600 AFL carpenters today reduced their demand for a $2 an hour wage to $1.75, but with the threat of strike Tuesday if the latter figure is not met. The present wage scale is $1.65.

157 Yankee Settlers Arrive In Australia as Others Quit

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 20 (AP)—One hundred and fifty-seven Americans arrived today to start a new life in Australia. Others already here are getting ready to leave—bitterly disappointed.

The new arrivals made up the biggest party of United States ex-servicemen with wives and children to reach Australia under the assisted-migrants scheme. Under this plan the Australian government pays 40 per cent of the passage.

Royal Thayer, 48, veteran of two world wars, was one disillusioned American. He said he would return to the U. S. immediately. Mayer told a reporter costs of living were much higher here than he had been led to believe. He said a booklet on the subject given him in San Francisco, his home city, was "way out of line."

Thayer said his trip to Australia to buy a chicken ranch already had cost him $1500. He complained about a duty he had to pay on cigarets and that there are "too many government restrictions in this country."

Mrs. G. R. Pierce, formerly of Seattle, wrote a bitter letter to newspapers here, saying she and her husband have become "discouraged and disgusted" by housing conditions. They have spent "thousands of dollars for nothing," she added, and will return to America next Monday.

"Right now your government has representatives in the U. S. A., urging young men and couples to migrate here," she told Australians. ". . . We shall feel it our duty publicly to warn our young folks to stay home and avoid the heartbreaks and disappointments they will find here."

BEGINNING SATURDAY MORNING AT 10 A. M.

Air Defense Chief Urges Strong U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (INS)—Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, comanding the Air Defense Command, said today the United States is the last of the democratic nations capable of building up the power and strategical resources needed to eliminate the anti-democratic enemy, when and if the showdown comes.

Writing for the March issue of Flying Magazine, the general said that if we are strong, determined and fully prepared for any eventuality, no enemy will plunge into a disasterous war.

Whether a showdown will come in the next year or in a decade or never, will be largely determined by the decision of the people of this nation, Stratemeyer wrote.

Soviet Setting Up North Korea Rule

SEOUL, Feb 20 (AP)—A high U. S. military authority said today the Russians are openly forming a Communist government in north Korea, "aimed directly at the United Nations."

"This throws down the gauntlet to the United Nations and indicates the Soviets are prepared to declare a government in north Korea before the United Nations can complete any action here," said the official, who didn't wish to be named.

Stopped 10 Times, Death Sentence Is Commuted

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 20 (AP)—Lawrence Nathaniel Phillips, 22, beat the electric chair again today—this time for good.

After postponing the convicted slayer's execution 10 times in less than a year, Gov. James E. Folsom finally commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Truman Off for Caribbean As Party Revolt Seethes

By ROBERT G. NIXON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (INS)—President Truman left today for a Caribbean vacation as a violent revolt in the Democratic party over the Chief Executive's civil rights crusade mounted in intensity.

Mr. Truman, en route to Key West, Fla., on the first lap of a two weeks trip which include inspection of the nation's Caribbean outposts, took off from Washington National Airport in the presidential airplane "Sacred Cow" at 10:32 a. m.

The President turned from the hectic political atmosphere of Washington after urging the followers of Henry Wallace to support the Democratic ticket as the choice of "Progressive Liberals" in the 1948 election.

Mr. Truman gave no sign of worry as he boarded the plane. Reporters asked him whether he had any parting message. He replied:

"None whatever. I'm as happy as can be."

Sec. Marshall, who will carry the ball in Washington for the President's foreign-aid program while Mr. Truman vacations, topped a list of high-rank ng officials who gathered at the airport to bid Godspeed.

New Dock, Wharf Rates Become Effective

Increased rates on dockage and passenger wharfage came into effect today at two of Boston's leading piers, the state-owned South Boston facility and Commonwealth Pier No. 1, East Boston, following announcement of the boosts by the Port of Boston Authority.

Shippers who opposed the increase at a recent public hearing believe the boosts will be offset by a reduction in loading and unloading charges at the piers authorized by the Port Authority at the same time.

Boy, 18, Found Double Hero

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP)—Proud Patchogue residents have started a hero's fund for 18-year-old Robert McDowell. To them he's a hero in more ways than one.

Robert plunged twice into the ice-crusted Patchogue river last Friday to rescue three small boys. He was recommended for the Carnegie Medal and invited to address several civic clubs.

Since then, however, fellow townsmen have discovered Robert is another kind of hero as well. He is the sole support of his ailing father, his mother, six sisters and five brothers. He does it on $37.13 a week, his take-home pay as an apprentice boat-builder. If the Patchogue fund becomes large enough, Robert hopes to buy a farm out West.

Strikebound Quincy Newspaper to Continue Publication

Using the vari-type press which has been employed by strikebound papers in Chicago and other cities, the Quincy Patriot-Ledger, evening daily newspaper, today assured readers that publication would continue even though a walkout of printers would prevent normal printing.

An afternoon edition of 18 pages with the majority in vari-type has already been published.

Subject of the walkout is a dispute over negotiations for a new contract, and Frank E. Connor, president of Local 13 International Typographical Union (AFL), stated that the printers were unable to gain a justified wage increase at the Patriot-Ledger.

"The management of the paper insisted on a contract which is contrary to the policy of the ITU and which is not obligatory under the Taft-Hartley act," he said. "They ought the privilege of employing whom they wish and when they wish."

Publisher G. Prescott Low stated that the union sought a closed shop and that "the wage issue was not the reason for the walkout."

Only two alternatives, both of which the Patriot-Ledger's counsel felt would violate the law, were offered by the union, a management statement declared.

First was a contract for a closed shop and a secondary boycott, and when this was turned down as against the law, the statement continued, the alternative offered by the union was an oral agreement with the same provisions. This procedure also, the paper was told, would violate the law.

New Yemen Ruler Asks Arab Backing

ADEN, Feb. 20 (AP)—Dispatches reaching here from Yemen today said the new Imam of Yeman had appealed to the Arab world for support and practical help.

The new ruler, Sayed Abdulla Bin Ahmed el Wazer, succeeds Yehia Hamid el Din, who dispatches yesterday said had died with three of his 16 sons and one of his principal advisers.

Other reports said three of the late Imam's remaining sons had recognized the new Imam as head of the constitutional government and that all political prisoners in Yemen had been set free.

The whereabouts of Crown Prince Saif Islam Ahmad are not known here.

It also was reported here that the British destroyer Comet had arrived at Hodeida, on Yemen's Red Sea coast.

'UMT Would Ready Us'

'Be an Guard'—PFC Michael Matkoski of Rochester, N. Y., shown at Cushing VA Hospital with Instructor Miriam Yoffa of Lynn, says Universal Military Training would enable the United States to mobilize an army of civilians in 24 hours. Mike, wounded in action in France, has been hospitalized for more than three years.

A CHALLENGE TO CONGRESS

GENERAL EISENHOWER'S final report as chief of staff of the United States Army is one of the most significant documents of the postwar period, in the manner in which it throws the light of stark facts into the dark corners of a potential and perhaps an IMPENDING national disaster.

The stark facts are these:

THE UNITED STATES IS DEFINITELY AND IMMINENTLY AND OMINOUSLY MENACED BY A DESTRUCTIVE WAR.

THE UNITED STATES IS ALMOST TOTALLY UNPREPARED TO DEFEND ITSELF SUCCESSFULLY IN SUCH A CONFLICT.

General Eisenhower spoke warningly and bitterly of the apparent disposition of Congress to DO NOTHING about this dire problem "because this is an election year."

He remarked specifically that Congress has evaded a decision on Universal Military Training, although all military authorities deem it an essential and indispensable basis for successful defense of the country in the event of war and it has "the endorsement of an overwhelming majority of Americans."

The background of congressional inaction on Universal Military Training fully bears him out.

The thinnest and most insincere of all excuses has been offered for this inaction, that new methods and weapons of warfare have made obsolete the mass training of millions of men.

But as General Eisenhower grimly asserts, Congress has been equally dilatory about providing the country with new weapons, with the result that we have NEITHER old nor new instruments of national defense in sufficient quantity to assure the country of success in war.

Here is his appraisal of the situation:

"By no stretch of the facts can the United States Army, as it is now manned, deployed and engaged, be considered an offensive force," he bluntly reports.

"It is not ready to respond to an emergency call because its global distribution not only leaves it WEAK IN EVERY SECTOR but prevents the concentration of anything beyond the MEREST HANDFUL for possible tactical use.

"This virtually COMPLETE DISPERSION of our ground strength CANNOT BE PERMITTED TO CONTINUE over any considerable period, because there are elements in both the world situation and our own strategic position that DEMAND THE CONSTANT AVAILABILITY of respectable land forces."

Against this known condition of almost total weakness, he continued, we are compelled to recognize that if the now IMMINENT menace of war becomes a REALITY as it may do at any moment:

"We would find ourselves facing across narrow ocean and Arctic barriers A DESPOTIC COLOSSUS spread over and beyond the combined Eurasian territories of the Roman Empire, the Persia of antiquity, the Germanic kings and the Mongol Khans."

THIS IS A SITUATION, as General Eisenhower appeals to Congress and the American people to understand, in which America has ONE CHANCE FOR PEACE, and we are now tragically and criminally NEGLECTING that once chance.

"Our task is to convince any possible aggressor that he can choose war ONLY AT THE RISK OF HIS OWN DESTRUCTION," he succinctly observed.

In the proper performance and fulfillment of that vital task, there must not only be an immediate and adequate establishment for Universal Military Training, but EVERY ARM OF NATIONAL DEFENSE in the whole field of land and naval and aeronautical warfare must be made FORMIDABLE to the utmost limit of our resources and as nearly INVULNERABLE as good foresight can accomplish.

General Eisenhower's invaluable report is a SUMMONS to national action and a CHALLENGE to Congress for patriotic discharge of its national duty.

Here's a health to you, Mary,
Here's a health to you,
The drinkers are gone
And I am all alone
To think of home and you, Mary
I have thought of your last love sigh,
And your tear-dimmed gentle eye,
I have called your name
When the night winds came
And heard my heart reply, Mary
Heard my heart reply.

– BARRY CORNWALL

MORE POEMS have been written about pipes and Mary than about the pleasures of any other form of tobacco. Second in popularity is the association of women, named Cigar. Another noteworthy fact about the name Cigar is that the first known woman of that name had eight husbands.

Among men who smoked Arthur Brisbane preferred cigaret smokers. He said they were the fastest thinkers. The great editorial genius didn't trust pipe smokers. He claimed they spent too much time thinking and too little doing. That they were slow-minded and slow in action.

Joe McCarthy

Joe McCarthy, the Red Sox manager, is another executive who has no faith in pipe smokers. He agrees with Brisbane that pipe smokers are slow thinkers. However, Joe prefers cigar smokers to cigaret smokers.

AT LAST – So far no kiss-proof lipstick has been originated. Nor any that will not stain objects with which the wearer's lips come in contact. However, I am informed there is now available a preparation which, when put on after lipstick is applied, makes the lips non-staining and kiss-proof. This is certainly one of the things the world has been anxiously waiting for. Don't know the originator of this miracle of make-up but it was probably some male chemist who grew weary of seeing lipstick-stained glasses, cups, napkins and sloppy lipstick-smeared cigaret butts.

SMART ANIMALS—A dog is more intelligent than a cat. A cat is smarter than an elephant. A pig has more sense than a horse. So states Prof. Warden of Columbia University. The good professor's list of the nine most intelligent animals, in the order of their intelligence, follows: "Orangoutang, gorilla, monkey, dog, cat, raccoon, elephant, pig and horse." I am surprised the fox didn't make the first nine in this rating. I believe a fox is at least smarter than a pig. Not only that, on many occasions, the fox has proven himself smarter than a dog. For example, in England recently, a pack of 15 hounds was chasing a fox. The wily fox led the hounds in the direction of a hidden shaft of an abandoned mine. The fox cleverly circled the hole but the dogs charged ahead and all 15 fell in the hole and were drowned.

ASKING—Queries from clients. Q – Is Gloria Swanson a grandmother? A – I believe Gloria has two grandsons. Don't know whether they call her "grandma" or not. There should be a different form of salutation for "oomph girl" grandmothers. Q – Is it a fact Lola Montez, Tod Sloan and Florenz Ziegfeld were all buried in Brooklyn? A – Lola Montez was buried in Brooklyn. In Greenwood Cemetery. Don't know Tod Sloan's last resting place. Florenz Ziegfeld was buried in Glendale, Cal., in the same cemetery as John Gilbert, Lon Chaney, Marie Dressler, Tom Mix, Russ Colombo, Wallace Reid, Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard, Douglas Fairbanks and Will Rogers.

HORSES & WOMEN—The reports of our Horses & Women experts should not be disregarded. They are based on extensive investigation and research. Six weeks ago our H & W department reported a rebellion of housewives in the offing because of rising prices. How right they were is proven by the fact an irate Boston housewife became so stirred at the rising prices of food that at a hearing presided over by Mayor Curley, she held aloft a haddock for which she had been forced to pay $1.40.

PLEASE NOTE In a recent item in this department it was stated that an electronic machine could divide 84,579,610,234,439 by 42,218,005,965,453 in 20 seconds. I expressed wonderment as to how long it would take a high school or college coed to do this division. Rita Glassa, Watertown, Mass., informs me she tackled the problem and it took her four hours to get the solution.

ASIDES—A "dress alike" dinner jacket for men and women. That's what one stylist is reported to have originated. Seems to me a man and wife sporting similar dinner jackets would look like a song and dance act . . . Add members My Name Is a Poem club: Pearl Earl, Selah, Wash.; Bea Lee, Washington, D. C.; Mary Clary, Santa Monica, Cal.

PASSING BY—Matt Moore, Veteran film actor, brother of Tom and Owen Moore. The only three brothers of stage or screen to each achieve star billing in his own right.

Veterans Denounce Foes of UMT Bill

AMVETS OF WORLD WAR II
LOS ANGELES COUNTY COUNCIL
Los Angeles 13, Cal.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst,
c/o The Los Angeles Examiner,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Sir:

THE LOS ANGELES COUNTY Council of AMVETS has given me, the new commander, a mandate to press a vigorous campaign to secure the support of our local congressmen for the Universal Military Training bill now before the Congress.

As the Hearst papers have repeatedly pointed out, the sincerity of our representatives can best be judged by what they do or fail to do now. The crucial point in this bill is the petition that has been filed to withdraw it from committee.

The effort to stifle this bill in committee is a disreputable parliamentary maneuver to relieve members of the necessity of voting on it in an election year.

Both Democrats and Republicans are playing into the hands of the Communists when they fail to sign the petition to discharge the committee from further consideration of UMT.

IN THE JANUARY ISSUE of "Political Affairs," I find an article by one Arnold Johnson, entitled, "How to Defeat Universal Military Training."

This article is a blueprint of the policy now being followed by the enemies of UMT, and "Political Affairs" on its own masthead describes itself as a "magazine devoted to the theory and practice of Marxism-Leninism."

In addition to the article on "How to Defeat UMT," there is an article by William Z. Foster, boss Communist in the United States, and one by V. M. Molotov, foreign secretary to the Soviet Union.

This is the type of publication where the enemies of UMT find aid and comfort, and by contrast dramatizes the courageous Americanism of the Hearst papers.

THE UMT ARTICLE criticizes the President's advisory commission on military training because it is recognized that the fact of the spread of totalitarianism did not stop with the defeat of Nazi Germany.

"Thus the commission slanders the Soviet Union by trying to identify that worker's state with the imperialist program of Nazi Germany," the writer declares—although Soviet Russia was not named in the commission's report.

Here is clear enough evidence—almost a confession—that the "good name of Russia" is more important to some American radicals than the defensive ability of our own country—I almost said "their" country!

In telling how so-called "progressives" must be hoodwinked, coerced and cajoled into fighting UMT, the article says: "The progressive forces must recognize the possibility of passage and the even greater possibilities of defeating this war measure."

NOTE THAT it is always called a war measure, while Soviet Russia, which has always dragooned its own citizenry into the Red army, is a "worker's state."

I quote again: "It must also be made clear that there is no danger to the national security of America and the peace of the world arising from the Soviet Union, the new democracies of Europe, or the rise of new people's movements under the leadership of Communists in other countries of any continent."

And I quote again: "Communists, of course, must be accepted partners in this coalition (to defeat UMT) within which they, like other groups, will carry on independent activity and present their independent views."

And I quote again, ad infinitum, ad nauseam: "This fight should stimulate movement to outlaw the atom bomb and achieve universal disarmament."

One can ignore the glib vernacular with which we have all become familiar, but one cannot ignore the fact that this blueprint has become reality.

IT IS TRAGIC THAT one small monthly seems to have the inside track with members of Congress who have refused to declare themselves to the American people.

I want to assure you that during the year the fight for UMT will have the highest priority in my office as commander of the Los Angeles County Council of Amvets.

I also want to congratulate and thank you and The Examiner for the leadership you have furnished in keeping this critical issue before the public. Cordially,

J. W. O'SULLIVAN,
Commander, Los Angeles County Council, Amvets.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

Copyright, 1948, International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20—I never thought Dana Andrews could make a movie deal that wasn't a loan-out from Sam Goldwyn or 20th Century-Fox. But in some way, Dana wangled one picture a year on his own—and he's made up his mind what it will be.

Before he took off on a boating vacation down by Mexico, he agreed to star in "No Minor Vices" for Charlie Einfeld and I can tell you that the story is every bit as amusing as the title.

It's about a pediatrician and his trials and tribulations taking care of the "minors." Lewis Milestone will direct.

Dana may have a fit when he knows it starts April 1. Right now he's a man of leisure, after almost two years of steady movie making, and he wants to fish and relax.

DAVID SELZNICK, who had planned to make "Little Women" with Jennifer Jones, Shirley Temple and Diana Lynn, won't be making it. He sold the story to Louis B. Mayer—and let me say right here, it's not for Lana Turner, Greer Garson and Ava Gardner.

June Allyson

It's for June Allyson and that isn't going to make June happy either. What a pessimist I am this morning. I'm sorry—don't be mad at me, MGM, but little Junie wants to do sophisticated parts. Now, Junie, you don't look sophisticated and you would be excellent in "Little Women."

ALL THE FANS who have always wanted to see Pia Lindstrom, the nine-year-old daughter of Ingrid Bergman, will soon have that wish granted. Ingrid has always kept her little girl out of the limelight but after Pia begged and begged her mother to act, the child was allowed to play a bit in added scenes of "Joan of Arc."

The lines little Pia says are these: As Joan passes the crowd in handcuffs, a woman says to a child, "Now you've seen the witch."

"But mother she's only a girl," answers the child—and that child is Pia.

After Pia played the scene, Ingrid said to her daughter, "Now you needn't get any ideas, because this is your last appearance on the screen."

ADRIAN, who never follows any trend but his own, introduced his own "new look" at his showing. Striking are his unusual prints, and newsworthy are the new high waist lines, and the definite Empire note of the Napoleonic period in his dinner gowns. They are so charming and feminine, but if you are going to wear these models of the Josephine era, girls, get out that old calorie book.

Irene Dunne, Claudette Colbert, Joan Crawford, Mrs. Ray Milland, Mrs. Bob Hope, Celeste Holm, Galli-Curci, Mrs. Will Hays and Mrs. Albert Lasker were among those at the showing, and, of course, Janet Gaynor, who is Mrs. Adrian in private life.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Frank Latimore is on his way back from Rome with a Russian bride of two weeks and that's news for his pals and friends.

Frank, who played with Betty Grable in "The Dolly Sisters," was loaned to Eddie Small for "Caghostro" in Italy and he met the girl he married on this vacation jaunt.

Sorry. Don't know her name, but before her marriage she was a business woman and is said to be very beautiful. She speaks no English, and he no Russian, so they compromise on what little Italian they know.

JOHN HUSTON goes over to MGM and this is a surprise. He takes with him Sam Spiegel. This is not a surprise, because I heard through the grapevine that Sam had been talking business with MGM and another important studio.

John will write and direct, of course, while Spiegel will be the producer in their setup, Horizon Pictures. Huston has a very good record of achievement at Warners: "The Maltese Falcon," "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," which got such raves as have seldom been heard, and "Key Largo," which he is now making. All of them star Humphrey Bogart.

ELIZABETH JENKINS HIGGINS, daughter of William Jennings who was 85 percent of the theaters in Mexico, told me she and her father have decided against selling any of their theaters.

"We've seen the boom period in Mexico," said Mrs. Higgins, "and we're ready both to accumulate. I'll say the theater business is about the best business you can be in, because if you own the theaters outright and make five dollars, it's all your own."

Mrs. Higgins is here to see a doctor about an infected foot.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD, collected at random: Gloria Dehaven in private life Mrs. John Payne, is in St. Vincent's Hospital, expecting her baby momentarily.

Bob Topping has gone to New York and will stay there for a week until his divorce from Arline Judge is all settled.

Martha Scott

Martha Scott has been told that she and Mel Powell may expect twins, and she is delighted.

There is a big rumor that Collier Young, who will marry Ida Lupino very soon, has gone to Columbia as story editor. He resigned from Warners last week.

Kenneth Hopkins, who went East to marry Amada Lane, the singer, and who came back without a bride, is making her bridal hat when she takes another groom. She'll marry Lt. Gene Whitcomb in Washington, D. C., the end of the month.

The Gordon Macraes are naming their baby William Gordon after his late grandfather.

It isn't bad to be able to get $20,000 a week and that's what Kathryn Grayson and Johnny Johnson are getting at the State Lake Theater in Chicago Easter week.

Thank you, Casa Marina Hotel in Key West, Fla., for naming one of your cabanas the Louella Parsons cabana. Hope I can get down there some day to use it.

The Liz Whitney-Hugh French romance is hot, and don't be surprised if Liz gets married. She's in a romantic mood after introducing her friend, Barbara Sears, to Winthrop Rockefeller. So many people remember Barbara when she was in Hollywood.

Adrian and Janet Gaynor had luncheon at the Beverly Brown Derby before his last non show, and Janet might have been one of his models, she looked so cute.

May Mann movie scribe has just received her divorce from A. Leon real estate dealer in Las Vegas.

Very interesting is Florabelle Muir's article on Amos 'n Andy called "Race Bound God in the Air," published this month in one of the top magazines. Glad Florabelle is getting some recognition. She deserves it.

Sydney Greenstreet, who is still taking very good care of himself, is considerably cheered by the news that his brother, Arthur, is coming to Hollywood from Australia for his first visit.

My Boston

By Alan Frazer

GIVING YOU THE LOWDOWN on where we pick it up. At Mario's: Thomas Mitchell is one of the actors in Howard Hughes' film, "The Outlaw." But he told our Boston censor, Walter Milliken, that he was glad Walter banned it in Boston. Tom also said Walter Huston tried to get out of a contract obligation to play in the picture . . . At Locke-Ober's: John Tyers, the singer, was just one of 50 in the choral group of "Winged Victory." But he goes into rehearsal next month as Bea Lillie's leading man in "Inside USA." On concert tour, John had barely time to stop off here for baked lobster Savannah in Winter pl. And "Inside USA" is one show that won't try-out in Boston, only in Philadelphia (for a month before bowing on Broadway) . . . At the Sable Room (Touraine): The first two names of Mabry, caricaturist at this spot, are James and Michael. Names well known in Boston. And Vesta O'Dell, tiniest Texan (4 ft. 11¼ in., when she stretches), takes her nimble keyboard fingers to West Roxbury Veterans' Hospital and Chelsea Naval on alternate Thursdays.

MOVING ON. At Statler suite 656-7: Liberace, tall, dark and handsome piano virtuoso, travels with 200 neckties 18 pairs of shoes, but explains, "My summer shoes are all at home, of course." Many of his ties are hand-painted in oils, by himself. There's one that reminds him to write letters. It's decorated with an airmail envelope, a mailbox and a typewriter. Another is adorned with bills. Imagine wanting to be reminded of those! And another depicts Times sq. on New Year's Eve . . . He's painted ties for Winchell and others, a blouse for Hildegarde. He also cooks, to avoid eating always in restaurants. The other night he had Harry Noble and Frances King in for chicken Tennessee, green beans with toasted almonds, an avocado salad and peach flambeau (flaming brandy-peaches on ice cream).

NEXT STOP. On Summer st.: That men's clothes dummy in the show-window is reading a newspaper of Jan 8. What a dummy . . . At 17 Court st.: Gen. Blake has assured Tony Tieso, DAV commander, that all employes with permanent Civil Service status, who are laid off in the big cutbacks, will not be discharged but furloughed, from his Veterans' Administration office. And regional Civil Service Director Foley says they can file for any two vacant government jobs for which they're qualified . . . In the mailbag: A Somerville man has another complaint against that Park st. station news stand (where a reader said he couldn't get matches with his ciggies). This man asked for a pack of a well-known brand of cigarets was told: "We only carry popular brands here." How popular?

MOVING AGAIN. At the Public Library: So you think quarrels in the Democratic State Committee are fairly recent? In August, 1906, the state committee was squabbling at the old Revere House over election of a convention chairman. But the members did agree on Bryan the foregone hope, for the presidential nomination . . . At the same time, President Teddy Roosevelt was planning to review our entire fleet at Oyster Bay on Labor Day. Somebody questioned the propriety of devoting Labor Day to that. But somebody else said, "Shucks, didn't President Cleveland once go fishing on Memorial Day?" Tickle! . . . The advertisements of that day show women with wasp waists, in long sleeves, high collars, large hats, skirts sweeping the floors, and carrying sunshades . . . Dave Dressler trained by Sam Langford was trying to get down to 130 pounds to fight Marty Baldwin . . . John J. Williams was archbishop, and William H. O'Connell, coadjutor . . . Kaiser Wilhelm had just kissed King Edward VII . . . Wolf's was offering Sloper's suits for $5 . . . You could go to N. Y. on the Joy Line steamers for $2.25 (1st class) and a 6-room apartment on Falmouth st., Back Bay, could be had for $25 a month . . . South Boston's St. Monday was a damp . . . Hoyt Bruger was on p'gramme with his performance in "The Man from Now" at the Tremont. John Craig and Lillian Lawrence were at the Globe in "The Gay Lord Quex." "Cape Cod Folks" was coming into the Boston. Lillian Tyce and Irene Jermon, "a span of speck ones," were at the Old Howard. Keiths was showing kinetograph movies, modern films in embryo . . . Curtis Guild was governor.

IN AN OLD BOOK. And maybe you think squabbles between the State House and City Hall are new . . . When George Washington came to Boston, as President in 1789, he was detached from Cambridge to Boston (then eight miles) by Lt. Gov. Sam Adams and the militia . . . At the Boston line the procession was halted by the municipal authorities. They claimed precedence over the State in receiving our first President . . . The municipal carriages blocked the road, and two hours elapsed, with Washington waiting on his horse, while the two sides quarreled . . . Finally Washington asked "Is there no other entrance to the town?" But there wasn't in those days . . . He was on the point of wheeling his horse about and abandoning his Boston visit when the dispute was settled. The Boston officials won. They made amends later by changing the name of our main thoroughfare (then Cornhill Marlbrough st., Newbury st. and Orange st.) to Washington . . . But meanwhile Gov. John Hancock was refusing to call on Washington. He thought George should call on him . . . That argument was won by Washington.

NOW, HITTING THE ROAD AGAIN. Backstage at the Cod Howard: We witness a demonstration of courage. Flash Mike Sachs returning to Boston from his incessant traveling over the face of America, walks on stage and cracks his jokes, to the roar of the crowd, just as if he could see.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—It's taken us a long time here in Washington to get true protocol through our thick skulls. Rank doesn't begin with the President and work down through the Chief Justice and the Cabinet. It begins with a tense and also somewhat past tense movie actress who has to have her back rubbed.

This was demonstrated by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who used to be the big prohibition prosecutor but now serves gallons of liquor to her guests. The former assistant attorney-general gave a soiree for Jeannette MacDonald at which a selected group we had hitherto thought of, in our primitive way, as the great of the land, had to wait until nearly 1 a. m. for their suppers.

Moreover, the guests were not permitted to smoke because it seems that Miss MacDonald's sensitive bugle is irritated by smoke. A number of them are human chimneys and it was sheer torture. Quite a few, including Atty.-Gen. Tom Clark, beat it without either getting fed or meeting the pull-prohibiting prima donna.

In fact, one of the ladies, noting the guests sneaking away into the cold gray morning, took stock of their political affiliations. Keeping out of earshot of Mrs. Willebrandt, long a GOP stalwart, the lady whispered:

"The Democrats are going, but the Republicans have got to stay!"

THIS WAS NOT entirely factual because Margaret Truman hung around, so did Supreme Court Justices Reed, Jackson and Douglas. As one lovely lady remarked, it was "pretty late for those old birds to be up," but they were game to the last.

The affair, at which the guests tried to drown their hunger at two bars generously stocked by the ex-prohibitionist, was held at the Sulgrave Club, one of our most hoity-toity traps.

Mrs. Willebrandt had shanghaied a bevy of our social arbiters to serve as co-hostesses. Those who—er—indulge managed to stick it out but the non-drinkers scrammed. It was quite a sight seeing Mrs. Perle Mesta and Mrs. (Army Sec.) Margaret Royall doing a sneak out.

The co-hostesses were practically knocked stiff on entering when the hired butler solemnly handed each a list of instructions. So help me, they were numbered, one to six, and read:

Memo for hostesses: (1) No smoking. Miss MacDonald has been warned not to get into a smoky atmosphere! (2) If the guest of honor is a little late, explain to the other guests that she is taking a treatment; (3) See that people are congenially seated at small tables; (4) After Miss MacDonald is seated feel free to take anyone who has not met her to her table; (5) While waiting for Miss MacDonald, see that people who wish to do so find the bars and help create a spirit of welcoming friendliness; (6) Attached is a rough sketch of the tables. Thank you. M. W. W.

THE GUESTS managed to locate the bars without charts or other navigational aids, but the spirit of welcoming friendliness began to wane as time passed and no Miss MacD.

There was no music, nothing but talk to fill the gap, and the latter became very acid. One of our society writers, Miss Evelyn Peyton Gordon, tried to sneak a cigaret and had it abruptly snatched from her hand by a shocked servitor who pointed to the "no smoking" signs plastered all over the place—the first time the Sulgrave Club has ever had such signs so far as anyone can recall.

The clock passed the bewitching hour and a dozen more guests took it on the jammister looking unbewitched. At 1:30 Mrs. Willebrandt, still guarding the comestibles from desecration, announced that Miss MacDonald should be along shortly.

The hostess then explained as if it took care of everything else more than two-hour wait Miss MacDonald, accompanied by her husband Gene Raymond, had had to go back to her hotel after the performance to be rubbed with alcohol and have her nose sprayed.

Smart Set — Sponsor Concert by Thomas

By BETTY ALDEN

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD M. DEVENS are co-chairmen of a group of young couples on the committee for the John Charles Thomas concert in Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon, March 7.

Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce members and their wives are actively working for the success of the affair which will benefit the Junior Chamber's civic betterment activities through all tickets purchased from the committee or Mrs. Robert G. Paine, Jr., of Charles River sq., ticket chairman.

Mrs. F. Reed Estabrook

Mr. and Mrs. Paine are in the group together with the Junior Chamber president, Stuart De-Bard and Mrs. DeBard of Hingham. Mr. and Mrs. F. Reed Estabrook and Mr. and Mrs. Colin Cuningham of Dedham, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Gray, Jr., Milton, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Drury, Wellesley.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Parker Brownell, Mr. and Mrs. H. Holton Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Creighton Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Garland.

WITH THE DOG SHOW and national squash tournament here over the holiday week-end there will be a great deal of entertaining among people interested in the two sports.

The group planning cocktail parties and dinners for the visiting squash players includes Mr and Mrs. Andrew Winslow, Jr. Mr and Mrs. Philip Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Batchelder, Mr and Mrs. John G. Cornish, Mr and Mrs. Charles Hamlin and Mr and Mrs. Wilbur Cobb.

They will be hosts and hostesses at a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon at the Tennis and Racquet Club, followed by a dinner dance at the Hotel Somerset. Charles Brinton of Philadelphia, defending his national singles title will be on hand for the festivities.

Sponsors of the tournament include Mr. and Mrs. H. Sherman Howes, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Y. Wakeman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Withington and Mr and Mrs Walter L. Badger.

NOTES FROM a Society Editor's Cuff: Dan Cupid reports that Kay MacDuffie of Chestnut Hill and James M. Martinez of Dedham are planning to get a jump on the June bridal rush by having a May wedding. Kay is the post-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John MacDuffie 2d. Jim's sister, Mrs Frederick Moses 3d (Catherine Martinez) of Providence, is one of her best friends.

Boston Symphony is out of town today so most of the fashionable subscribers are getting together for luncheon bridge parties. Friday afternoon parties during the Symphony season are a novelty except on dates when the orchestra is on tour because planning a social affair to conflict with the concerts just isn't done in Boston society.

Mr and Mrs Charles Toppan, the latter in a lovely shade of coral metal cloth dinner gown, were among the enthusiastic theater Guild audience enjoying G. B Shaw's "You Never Can Tell" at the Colonial the other evening. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keller of Newton Center attended the play with several friends they had entertained at dinner. Two pink Valentine camellias were tucked in Mrs Robert M. P. Kennard's hair above a snug fur jacket and Mrs Charles Vallendar, Jr., wore a little coronet of black net and gold sequins in her dark hair.

IN A WEEK of top events at Hialeah in Miami the buffet luncheon given by Hialeah Pres. John C. Clark and Mrs. Clark was the chief attraction for socialites in Palm Beach was well represented by Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who wore a pink linen suit with green, pink and white printed silk blouse and a halo of rosebuds in her hair.

Also from Palm Beach were Mr and Mrs. John Sims Kelly (Brenda Frazier) with Mr and Mrs. Edwin Russell and the latter's brother, Lord Blandford. Mrs. Russell is daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Marlboro.

BLIND DATE ROMANCE

Then the top romance of the century was topped off. Liz Whitney invited radiant Bobo to have "blind dinner date" at a midtown New York restaurant with Laurance and Winthrop Rockefeller. This was in the summer of 1946, when Bobo was faced with puzzling domestic problem.

Winthrop, called the "most eligible bachelor in America," fell in love with Bobo on sight. Here's how Winthrop explained his meeting with Bobo:

"When I saw Bobo I knew I was gone. All those years of bachelorhood faded. All the other girls I'd known faded, too. It was love at first sight, all on a blind date.

"Bobo was unostentatiously charming, with a direct simplicity no one could assume unless it sprang from the heart. It is Bobo's utter candor, her naturalness, that makes her the one girl for me. I guess the Rockefellers are pretty lucky after all."

And Bobo confided this about her first meeting:

"Winthrop was the most attractive man I'd ever met. I was drawn to him immediately, but I was a little worried, too. To begin with, I was still married. Also, Liz Whitney had been seeing Win very often and she liked him, too."

AFFAIR SOON SERIOUS

In spite of herself, Bobo began seeing Winthrop. She even turned down husband Jo Paris returning to New York last September as Winthrop still asked for dates. So affair became serious.

Richard Sears agreed to let Bobo get a divorce. A property settlement was arranged last July 27, just before her return from Paris. She went to Reno to dissolve her marriage.

Bobo established residence at Flying M Ranch, near Frankltown, Nev. With her was Joyce Matthews, who got a divorce from comedian Milton Berle at the same time.

She filed charges of mental cruelty against young Sears under her maiden name, Jacqueline Boulekoute Sears, and won the divorce decree at Carson City on October 28.

Bobo then filed application last Dec. 15 to assume the name Barbara Paul Sears, which she said had been used professionally, and her decree was amended to include this change.

Bobo told intimates:

"Dick (Richard Sears) and I parted good friends, and I still admire and respect him."

She frequently talked to him on trans-Atlantic phone, and Dick sent Bobo two dozen white roses last Christmas.

Mrs. Richard Sears, Sr., mother of the young diplomat, stood by Bobo after the divorce, asserting:

"Bobo was a very nice, sweet, beautiful girl.

"My son just couldn't get along with her. There was the war and Richard's foreign service. He was here, there and everywhere, and I suppose that made for unrest."

HOME ON EAST SIDE

On her return from Hollywood, Bobo moved into a third-floor walkup tenement in New York's Third ave., alongside an elevated train line. The tenement is owned by the Sears estate. Many East Side others from parlance pass greet Sears. The hallways dark. The steps are rickety. Bobo's calling bell worked one way, and she had to come flying down to answer calls or open the door.

On the first floor is a shop, on the second floor two former Yale students installed there by her former mother-in-law to give Bobo protection. On the third floor is the biggest surprise of all. Bobo's apartment.

Her lavish furniture, in contrast to the dingy setting, is amazing. There are six rooms, all carpeted from end to end. The living room is furnished with costly antiques. A velvet couch stands between two windows, with matching velvet draperies.

An 8-inch by 10-inch picture of Winthrop stands on a table in the living room. A bookcase, with shelves from floor to ceiling, stands in a corner. Many of the books which Bobo owns came as gifts from Stanton Griffis, U. S. ambassador to Poland, whose friendship she cultivated during her marriage to Sears.

"PALACE" LOOTED

Bobo's tenement "palace" has been visited by robbers three times. Twice looters got away with clothes and jewels. But the third time, several months ago, they were not so lucky.

Bobo was coming home from a date when she encountered a robber coming down the stairs with her furs. Being a plucky girl, Bobo sailed into him with both fists. Other tenants heard the commotion but they arrived on the scene too late.

Bobo emerged victorious from the battle. The thief got away, but Bobo retrieved her furs—plus a black eye.

After her divorce last fall, Bobo flew to Paris to meet Winthrop who was there on business for his oil company.

There Bobo suddenly and bravely broke off their engagement. She went to the Rockefeller mansion was hurt. But Bobo explained:

"I didn't want to put Win on the spot with his family. I broke the engagement because I felt he would be too much of a gentleman to do it. We had a lot of fun, but there were some unfavorable reports, and I felt I ought to leave."

Bobo returned to New York. She brooded and became nervous and thin. Intimate friends said she was "really carrying the torch."

CABLEGRAM STIMULANT

Winthrop continued his business trip to Arabia where he had to inspect some oil interests. One cold, bleak afternoon during the Christmas week when Bobo was feeling particularly low-spirited, a cablegram arrived from Winthrop. It said:

"I'm not feeling too well or happy. I miss you very much. Will see you as soon as I return."

This gave Bobo hope her romance with Winthrop would be picked up again.

The multi-million-dollar heir arrived back in New York Jan. 6 and met Winthrop in his apartment at 770 Park ave., and they embraced.

When Bobo left for Florida a few weeks ago to be a guest at the Winston Guest home in Palm Beach, she had no idea her vacation would result in marriage to Winthrop.

Thus culminated a romance that could only happen in America.

Bobo wanted to get some rest and a tan. She had invited a girl friend to go along, but her friend was unable to make the trip.

Winthrop flew down to visit her twice. On his third trip he carried with him engagement and wedding rings.

South Boston Boy Group in Fight for Pets

The very idea of Senate Bill 264 striking fear into the hearts of Massachusetts' little children, who foresee with horror what the measure might mean if they lost their beloved pets.

Among them are some 20 members of the South Boston branch of the Boys Clubs of Boston, lads who bring their pets with them each afternoon to the club because they are afraid to let them out of their sight. Childlike, they just can't realize the bill they fear has not been passed into law.

Senate Bill 264, filed by Sen. William Nolen and Rep. Sherman Miles, provides that lost or strayed dogs or cats would have to be given over for experimentation and vivisection if they were not claimed by their owners within six days.

KEEP EYE ON PUP

Led by leashes, bits of rope and old strips of cloth, the young masters bring their canine charges to the club. Some of the braver souls tie their pets to the gate outside; but most of the boys cautiously bring the pups right inside with them.

One of the busiest of the worried young dog lovers is George Nault, 8. George's family pet, Tippie, recently had a litter of five mongrel puppies.

Another lad, Robert Ostiguy, 9, one of the 22 children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ostiguy of Tudor st., South Boston, worries over his pet dog and shadow, Blackie. He takes Blackie with him every day, saying:

"We don't have any fun unless we have dogs."

HEARING TUESDAY

Like many of the dogs, Frank Cybulski's "Shep" never before wore a leash, but he does now.

The Nolen-Miles Bill will have a public hearing at the State House next Tuesday, Feb. 24, before the legislature's legal affairs committee. At the same session, the committee will consider House Bill 1097, which would permit the director of a laboratory to order experiments or surgical operations on pets without anaesthesia if, in his opinion, "anaesthesia would defeat the object of the experiment or operation."

Pool to Be Opened After 20 Years

Unanimous sentiment among the five members of the Boston School committee will lead to prompt action to open the swimming pool at Roxbury Memorial High School for Boys for the first time since the pool was constructed 20 years ago, it was indicated today.

An unofficial poll showed Michael J. Ward, Daniel J. McDevitt, Dr. Patrick Foley and Isadore H. Y. Muchnick in favor of opening the pool, and Chairman Joseph White said later he never would have allowed the pool to be closed if he had been in office.

Although the pool originally cost $75,000, a cafeteria has been built directly over it. The present plan is over cost of reconditioning the pool and shifting the cafeteria.

Christmas Mail A Trifle Delayed

NICHOLSON, Pa., Feb. 20 (AP)—Thanks to the springlike weather, residents of this community of 1000 finally received Yuletide greetings today.

Postmaster L. A. Wallace explained it this way:

Last Dec. 22 several mail pouches were thrown off a Lackawanna Railroad train as it sped through the town. One of them landed in a snowdrift. More snow that day and since then completely buried the pouch, which rested beneath the blanket of white until the current thaw exposed it.

Newton Son Denies Guilt in Forgery

HARWICH, Feb. 20 -- A 29-year-old Newton man pleaded not guilty in district court today to charges of forging his father's name on two $500 checks.

Richard S. Snow, of Garland st., Newton, father of four children, was committed to Barnstable jail for lack of $2000 bail and his case was continued to March 5 by Judge Robert A. Welsh.

Snow was an Army intelligence captain on Gen. Patton's staff in the last war, and until recently an assistant manager of a Boston loan company. Police testified his father, Ralph W. Snow, former town clerk and treasurer of Orleans and now a California resident, had brought the complaint.

According to police, the defendant forged his father's name to two $500 checks which cleaned out the senior Snow's account in an Orleans bank.

Costello, DeValera Invited to Hub March 17

Twelve members of the Massachusetts Senate and House have invited John A. Costello, newly-elected Eire prime minister, and his predecessor, Eamon DeValera, to attend the St. Patrick's Day celebration in South Boston March 17.

DeValera has indicated he would be in New York March 17 as guest of Mayor William O'Dwyer of that city.

Councilor Hurley Blasts City Hospital Heads

City Councilor William F. Hurley of Roxbury, during a City Council budget hearing, sharply criticized the City Hospital administration and demanded that the temporary ban on tonsil and adenoid operations be lifted.

Hurley urged that Dr. James W. Manary, hospital superintendent, bring the demand to the attention of the trustees.

J. E. Gorham Inducted Medford Fire Dept. Head

Medford's new wire chief, Capt. John J. E. Gorham, 58, stepped into office today following his induction at a special meeting of the Board of Alderman in City Hall.

Chief Gorham is a native of South Boston and veteran of World War I. He headed the civil service list for appointment as chief.

Hypoproteinosis! Have You Got It?

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP)—You've never heard of hypoproteinosis—possibly the most common disease in the world.

The disease—caused by protein deficiency—never had a name in accepted medical language, an article in the Journal of the American Medical Ass'n said today.

The name was suggested by Dr. Francisco de P. Miranda, director of the National Institute of Nutrition, Mexico City, Mexico, to distinguish it from undernutrition (lack of calories) and malnutrition (vitamin deficiency).

Hypoproteinosis, he said, is caused by the low economic level on which half the population of the world lives.

How A&P Gives You Lower Food Prices

During the past week you have noticed lower prices on many important food items in your A&P stores. These prices are a direct reflection of the reductions in the market cost of the food to us.

Many of our customers are amazed to find these price reductions going into effect so quickly at the retail level. They wonder how we do it. There is no mystery about it.

We are able to reflect these market reductions promptly because of three basic policies.

First: We endeavor to buy our food from primary sources of supply, such as farmers, meat packers and grocery manufacturers, and move it directly to our stores and warehouses. This keeps down the cost of distribution to us and the price to you at all times.

Second: When the cost of food to us goes down, we do not wait until we have exhausted supplies on hand, but endeavor to reflect reductions in our retail prices promptly.

Third: We are food merchants. Not food speculators. We do not build up great reserves of food at any time. We are in the market day to day buying food to meet our customers' day to day needs.

The lower prices you are finding in A&P stores coming as they do at a time when all of us are concerned with the high cost of living, have prompted many of our customers to ask us what the food price outlook is. Are there going to be further reductions in these and other foods.

Frankly it is impossible for anyone to predict future retail food prices without knowing whether the current break in the commodity market is temporary or the beginning of a general trend.

Grocers do not control the price they must pay for food. They can lower retail prices only to the extent to which they buy wisely, keep their own costs and profits down, and pass along savings resulting from lower wholesale prices to their customers.

We base our retail price on the cost to us plus our low cost of doing business including our small profit of about 1½ cents on each dollar of sales. Therefore, we can say A&P prices will follow the market trend, and that any further reduction in the cost of food to us, or in our cost of doing business, will promptly result in lower prices in our stores.

You can count on A&P to give you lower prices whenever and wherever it is possible.

You can trust A&P to give you the most quality food for your money.

Easter Fashion Parade -:- -:-

Sondheim Endorses Coat-Dress

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

EVEN though all of us are dreaming about the Easter outfit and those warm, balmy spring and summer days ahead to show it off . . . fashion-wise, it wouldn't be amiss to glimpse slightly into the far future of next fall. It is always good to know what's in the minds of the designers who set the trends . . . and make plans accordingly.

Realist that he is about fashion, Herbert Sondheim is also one designer unselfish with his fashion ideas. At this early date, he is perfectly willing to predict that a modified full silhouette with back movement and detail . . . such as his gray wool coat-dress pictured on this page . . . is a forerunner of the coming silhouette for fall.

Several coat-dresses . . . evenly hemmed with fullness gained from back panels . . . are included in his spring collection. Sondheim believes that street clothes should be worn approximately 13 inches from the floor, that shoulders are becoming more rounded although padded, and that waistlines should be accented.

Sondheim favors the small waistline, but doesn't force it. Rather it appears small because a jacket is snugly belted or corseletted with frog fastenings . . . because a slim middy top is definitely fitted . . . because bodice drapery is crossed above a soft wrapped sash . . . and because lovely full skirts pleat or tuck out from curves of your own.

This will not only be a navy, but a gray season as far as Sondheim is concerned. His grays range from silver to smoke, the lighter shades sometimes contrasting with the darker . . . or sharpened with navy, in woolen costumes. And gray is also an important color for evening . . . appearing in such different type fabrics as linen-like rayon, chiffon and taffeta.

Because Sondheim favors a rounded but unexaggerated hipline, his circular skirts are cut on the bias . . . and, with a couple of exceptions . . . fullness in all skirts adjusts to the figure of the wearer rather than billing out from a petticoat. A particularly pretty skirt favored by this designer gets its gentle tucked and puckered fullness with reverse stitching . . . not all the way down from waist to hem, but in horizontal sections.

Tomorrow's Designer: JO COPELAND.

IT IS SAID that men always like to see their womenfolk in fresh navy outfits for spring . . . and I'm no exception. This sheer wool is my own idea of the perfect spring 1948 suit. My reason is that it is equally attractive under a coat or without a coat.

With a coat over it, you have the appearance of a dress because of the button detail on the skirt corresponding in line to the button detail on the jacket. As the weather gets warmer, it is the perfect example of the dressmaker suit for this spring. A pink taffeta gilet gives the appearance of a blouse, but it is especially attractive without gilet or blouse.

A coat dress appeals to me because it is so self-sufficient standing on its own merits as a complete-in-itself costume when the advancing season makes a coat unnecessary. I think my gray wool coat dress is most unusual and attractive because of its new, modified full silhouette. To my mind, the fact that it has back movement and detail makes it a forerunner of the coming silhouette for fall and therefore important, style-wise.

Herbert Sondheim

FRIENDLY AID TO REMEMBERING

A gift that is a wonderful inspiration to kind thoughts and consideration is one of the record-books of birthdays, anniversaries, and other important days to be remembered. There are beautifully attractive ones now in the stores . . . and they are an excellent gift. MRS. BEECHMAN.

FLUFFY CODFISH CAKES

2 cups flaked salt codfish
4 cups diced, pared, white potatoes (about 4 medium) 2 slightly beaten eggs
2 tbsp. melted butter or fortified margarine
Speck pepper Speck celery salt Fat

Freshen fish as manufacturer directs. Cook potatoes in 2 cups boiling water, covered, until potatoes are tender. Drain well, mash thoroughly with potato masher. Add remaining ingredients, except fat, and beat with masher or spoon until light and fluffy. Chill thoroughly—several hours if possible. Heat 1¼-inch fat or salad oil in deep saucepan 390 deg. F. on a deep fat frying thermometer, or until a 1-inch cube of day-old bread browns in 20 seconds. Drop codfish mixture, in heaping tablespoonfuls into fat and fry until golden brown. Drain on brown paper. Makes 6 servings.

MEXICAN RICE WITH STUFFED EGGS

¾ cup raw white rice 2 cups sliced onions
2 cups green pepper rings ¾ cup fat or salad oil
1 No. 2 can tomatoes (2½ cups)
2¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper ¾ tsp. caraway seeds
1 cup grated, process American cheddar cheese (¼ lb.)
4 hard-cooked eggs 1-3 cup top milk

Cook rice in 2 qts. boiling salted water 10 min.; tender; rinse; drain. Saute onions in hot fat for 3 min. Add peppers; saute until tender. Add tomatoes, ⅜ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper. To rice, add caraway seeds, 1½ tsp. salt, ¾ cup cheese. Shell eggs, cut in halves, remove yolks; mash; add milk, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper; beat smooth. Refill whites. Arrange rice and tomatoes in layers in greased 10x6x2-inch baking dish, tomatoes on top. Make 4 depressions in mixture with back of spoon. In each place 2 stuffed egg halves. Sprinkle ¾ cup cheese around eggs. Bake in moderate oven of 325 deg. F. for 20 min. Makes 4 servings.

LEMON MILK SHERBET

1 envelope plain unflavored gelatin (1 tbsp.)
½ cup milk ¾ tsp. salt
1 1-3 cups granulated sugar
3½ cups milk ¾ cup lemon juice
1 tsp. grated lemon rind

Set cold control of automatic refrigerator at coldest setting. Sprinkle gelatin on ½ cup milk in bowl. Let soften 5 min. Then set over boiling water; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Combine remaining ingredients; stir in gelatin. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator; freeze until frozen 1 inch in from edge of tray. Turn into chilled bowl; beat with egg beater until smooth, but not melted. Return to freezing tray and freeze until just firm enough to spoon out for serving. Makes 5-6 servings.

NOT ONLY the perch, but the color of the hat this season poses requisite prettiness on the eye. This Emme-designed bolibunt sailor executed in sugar violet and trimmed with ribbon loops of picot edged taffeta in a pale purple and covered with sheer, matching veiling that ends in a scarf, requires more than just a place to rest. It demands a lovely face beneath . . . accentuated with fresh, clean, smooth-tissued eyes as bright as the brightness of the topper.

Cream and Wash Give Eyes That Sparkle, Healthy Look

WORDS, WORDS, PRETTY WORDS about the eyes. It would be so much more effective if the eyes were prettier than all the pretty words we could summon at our command to describe what they should be and how they should look.

But, alas, wrinkles have a nasty way of showing up suddenly in the most unexpected places.

Of course, it is good to know that all the lines around the eyes are not always due to age. Young people have those tiny lacy patterns, very often. Mostly, they are caused by a dry skin condition . . . and because the skin around the eyes is so much thinner and more delicate than the rest of the face . . . the wrinkles, there, are more or less exaggerated. Then, too, eyestrain, frowning and exposure make their unpleasant contribution to the unpleasantness of an accordion-pleated eye-frame.

NEED DAILY CARE

A friend who hadn't seen us in a long while . . . was amazed at the utter lack of grooves around our eyes. And we were just as amazed at her thinking they should be there. Why? We pamper the eyes nightly and we wash them faithfully every day . . . the inside of the eyes, we mean. Consequently, the white of the eyeball is pure-white and the eye-frame is soft and unwrinkled. It follows, like night the day, that with care the complexion rewards.

There's a splendid eye cream and its indispensable mate, a fresh, transparent eye wash . . . that are to the eyes what carmine is to the lips. The cream softens the tissue-environs . . . the wash cleanses, brightens and makes sparkle the eyes, themselves . . . and the pair work hand-in-eye for sparklers that justify the pretty words discoursed by a beauty editor. And this particular eye cream is so light that it may do 24-hour beauty duty. In fact, it is supposed to be worn day and night . . . under the makeup for perpetual beauty bounty.

R. M.

She Should Play Safe

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am 17 and in love with a boy of 22. Neither of my parents approve of this boy. I have gone with him off and on since I was 14, and we broke up several times, and the last time we broke up my parents said they wouldn't allow me to go with him again. However, about two months ago, I began to meet him at skating rinks or at his sister's.

One of the reasons my parents do not approve of him is because he was going with a girl and now she is going to have a baby. He says it isn't his, and I believe him. We plan to get married as soon as I am 18.

My question is, how can I get my parents to allow me to go with him, and, if I can't get them to let me, would it be wrong to run off and get married when I became 18?

"Worried Sick"

Dear "Worried Sick":

My sympathies in this situation are with your parents rather than you. They are undoubtedly far better judges of whether or not this boy is a suitable companion for you than you are. It is entirely possible, of course, that this boy is innocent in regard to the girl in question. But somehow he doesn't sound to me like a good risk.

I think you would make a great mistake to keep on "sneaking out" to meet this boy and a still greater one if you ran off and got married to him.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

FRESH PORK is one of the more plentiful meats; and if properly cooked, delicious and not difficult to digest.

Broiled pork chops as served for Sunday breakfast by my grandmother were a treat. They were always well cooked and never greasy, hard or dry.

"That is very interesting," said the Chef skeptically. "Because the right way to broil the pork chops has been a problem with the most experienced Chef everywhere."

Well, the secret is so old that it's new again, and here it is: The pork chops were first simmered half an hour in water then drained and broiled over the coals. Like all good methods this is very simple. The simmering in water pre-cooked the chops, removed the excess fat, and left them moist, so they did not dry out when broiled.

"Very intelligent," conceded the Chef. "What sauce did your grandmere serve with the broiled pork chops?"

CREAMED POTATOES

"She served just creamed potatoes."

"May I suggest a mild mustard cream sauce?" inquired the Chef. There was a faint trace of hauteur in his voice.

"That sounds good, but it's new to me," I said.

"It is not difficult," explained the Chef, "you make ½ c. of thick white sauce. Then add 1 tbsp. table mustard, 1 tsp. vinegar, then mix in ½ tsp. honey," he bowed his acknowledgment.

"Ah, the trick of the Chef," I commented. "Well, we've about planned our dinner. For vegetables with the pork chops and mustard sauce let's have sweet potatoes and a can of string beans."

"Why not prepare the string beans au gratin? I'm sure they'll be delicious. Think how good they'll taste baked in a nice cream sauce, with grated cheese and buttery—I mean margarined—crumbs."

"We'll see what we can do," said the Chef.

BROILED PORK CHOPS

Buy any kind of pork chops and have them cut thin. Place in a saucepan; add a small bay leaf, half cover with boiling water, cover closely and simmer for 30 min. The water should be mostly evaporated. Then drain and dry the chops; brush with melted fat, dust lightly with salt, pepper and flour. Place in a pre-heated broiler and broil 10 min. or until golden brown. The pork will be thoroughly cooked, tender and moist.

STRING BEANS AU GRATIN

For this use 1 can cut string beans. Mix with 2 c. thick well-seasoned cream sauce. Top with ½ c. fine, dry crumbs mixed with 3 tbsp. grated sharp cheese and 1 tbsp. melted margarine. Slow-heat in the oven for 30 min. Then brown quickly under the broiler.

Cream Sauce: This is made like plain white sauce with this exception: Use whole rich milk, or reconstituted dried skim milk combined with ¼ the quantity of cream or undiluted evaporated milk for richness. To make, melt 2 tbsp. butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add 4 tbsp. flour and stir until blended. Gradually stir in 2 c. heated rich milk, adding it so slowly the milk is absorbed before more is poured in. Cook and stir over a low heat until boiling. Then simmer 2 min. Season with ½ tsp. salt and a few grains white pepper. For use in string beans au gratin, season further with ½ tsp. onion juice and ¼ tsp. nutmeg.

COFFEE SPICE CAKE

Measure 1-3 c. shortening into a mixing bowl. Work with a spoon until soft. Then gradually work in ½ c. brown sugar and 1 beaten egg. Add 1 tsp. baking soda to ½ c. molasses and stir in. Next, sift 2 c. flour with ¼ tsp. salt, 1½ tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. clove and ½ tsp. nutmeg. Mix in ½ c. moist raisins. Stir into the first mixture alternately with ½ c. cold strong coffee.

Transfer to a shallow, oiled cake pan about 7 x 11, and bake 45 min. in a moderate oven, 350 to 375 F. When cool, serve plain, or cover with coffee cream icing.

Coffee Cream Icing: In a pint-sized bowl combine 1 tsp. soluble coffee powder with 2 tbsp. top cream and ½ tsp. vanilla. Mix well. Stir and beat in 1 1-3 c. sifted confectioner's sugar, or enough to make the icing thick enough to spread on a cake.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

To make a cake rise level, spread the batter thicker at the edges than it is in the middle of the pan.

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

MRS. JOSEPH E. SCANLON, president of the Boston City Federation of Organizations, says this Beef a la Stroganoff is a great Sunday night supper favorite with her family and guests. With it she serves tomato juice and hors d'oeuvres; and for dessert she likes Italian pastry and coffee. The main dish may be made in the morning and reheated successfully just before serving. Although this recipe serves only four, it may be doubled quite easily for a larger group.

BEEF A LA STROGANOFF

1½ lbs. lean top of round steak, cut ½ inch thick
1 can button mushrooms, or
½ lb. fresh mushrooms
2 tbsp. butter
½ pint soured cream
1½ tbsp. flour
Salt, pepper and paprika

Trim fat off meat, and cut meat across the grain into pencil-width pieces about 1½ inch long. Put butter in a frying pan, add cut-up meat and allow to cook slowly, with the lid on the pan, for 15 minutes, turning over occasionally. Then add mushrooms, allowing to simmer for 10 minutes. If the pan becomes a little dry, add some fat, but don't let it get greasy. Then when the mushrooms and meat are cooked about 25 minutes, place the mixture in the top of a double boiler.

Put another tablespoon of fat in the frying pan, melt and mix the flour with it. Then add the sour cream. (I like to get the regular sweet, thick cream and let it sour myself.) If cream is too thick, add a little milk. Place pan over fire and stir around with a fork. Then pour this mixture into the beef and mushrooms in the double boiler and heat together. Season to taste with salt, pepper and paprika. (The paprika gives the sauce a nice pink color.)

Serve on toast, large biscuits, or mashed potatoes. If more gravy is needed, increase the amount of sour cream

A DOORMAT RISES

(A Complete Short Story)

By HOLLIS STARNES

"ALL MY married life," said Beth Townsend miserably, "our guest bedroom's been used by my mother-in-law. Now Burt's gone, I don't see how I can stand it any longer!"

Hannah Griffin, owner of the village drugstore at Silverlake, looked across the counter at the pretty dark-haired woman, recently widowed.

Through the 16 years of her marriage she had never complained of the testy old lady, her husband's mother who insisted on ruling the roost. "The marvel is you've stood it so long, Beth. But surely now mother Townsend will live with one of her other sons—let you start a new life of your own!"

"A life of my own!" Beth echoed the words tremulously. "I've never had one, Hannah—first Father to boss me, then Burt and his mother. Here's her white face staring back at me!"

"We've got to stop her. But how?"

"I've tried to think. There's no way, Hannah. Oh, I don't mean to bother you with my troubles. If you'll just give me something for my headache—"

"You should go to bed with a dull headache," said the druggist, "but that won't cure it. What you need is relief from the cause."

"What can I do? After years as a doormat I have no fight in me, Hannah. But the house is mine now. I could sell it."

"But you love the house!" Hannah protested. "You've worked years to make it attractive. Why not rent it awhile, till your mother-in-law gets used to camping on someone else? Hi Griffin has calls every day for furnished houses."

"But where would I go?" the widow asked wearily. "I hate boarding houses. I don't know where to go. I'm tired and mixed up—all I want is a bit of peace and privacy in my own home."

Principal Characters

Widowed BETH TOWNSEND had in-law trouble, but she found the solution in clever HANNAH GRIFFIN'S village drug store. An author, JOHN NORCROSS, proved to her that truth is often stranger than fiction.

HANNAH SOLVES THE PROBLEM

"What about a nice roomer? Mother Townsend had a lovely suite downstairs—sun parlor, bedroom and bath, private entrance."

"No one in the village needs rooms, it's months before Summer tourist time. I feel like three blind mice. Here comes another customer—I'll run along."

"Take two of these tablets," said the druggist, "lie down and relax. Don't try to think, get some sleep if you can. By the time you wake up I may have an idea—some plan for a way out."

Beth stared at her incredulously. "You really think——"

"There's a way out of this and every problem in life," Hannah cut in firmly. "If not out, at least around. That's what we're going to find—in time to head off Mother Townsend!"

"It sounds like a dream!" said the widow as she left.

When she was free, Hannah called her brother-in-law's real estate office. "I don't know about roomers," he said, "but I have one call for a house that size, if Beth wants to rent. An author wants a quiet place to write a book."

"How much family?"

"Just himself and secretary, another man. Money's no object, but they want me to pick them up a housekeeper, too."

"Would they pay well?"

"The sky's the limit for a woman who can cook, keep the place clean, and not get underfoot. This man's book is late, his publisher's riding him."

"Wire him right away, Ed!" cried Hannah. "How long does he want it for?"

"Long enough to give Beth a breathing spell. But where are we going to dig him up a housekeeper?"

"Beth!" Hannah crowed. "She can stay right on at home, where she wants to be."

"But would Beth take such a job—a servant in her own house?"

"What else has she been all these years? Now she'll get paid for it!"

Not until the deal was closed did Hannah call Beth with the news. "But I never could cook to suit a strange man!" gasped the widow.

"If you cooked to suit Mother Townsend you'll suit any man living. Mr. Norcross doesn't want anything fancy, he told Ed. He doesn't know yet that his housekeeper's to be his landlady."

"Let's not tell him," said Beth quickly. "Do you think he'll want my room upstairs, or Mother Townsend's suite — I could fix the sun parlor into a bedroom for the secretary."

"Do that," said Hannah, "and keep your own quarters. Mr. Norcross told Ed to have you installed before they got here. Now wire your mother-in-law!"

"You send it, Hannah, and sign my name! I'm too excited to put words together!"

The day after her tenant arrived, Beth came into the drugstore for ice cream. "Hannah, it's like a dream! These people love the house, and praise my cooking to the skies. They've been so nice I hate to take the money!"

"Ed Griffin's collecting your rent," said Hannah dryly, "and if you go on like this, I'll make him collect your wages too. What's Mr. Norcross like—Ed says he writes murder mysteries full of blood and thunder."

"He's mild and soft-spoken," Beth said. "A tall spare fine-looking man. He doesn't say much, but his secretary, young Lane, is a jolly lad—an ex-G.I."

"If Mother Townsend could see her rooms now! chuckled Hannah.

"Don't mention her name!" Beth shuddered. "The scene she'd make, the scandal she'd cook up, if she knew I was alone in the house with two strange men!"

"Well, there's nothing to bring her here," said Hannah lightly. "You sent all her things, she thinks you're gone and the house is rented."

Beth had turned pale. "I feel it in my bones she'll come, and turn my beautiful dream into a nightmare!"

But as months passed and the dream continued unbroken, all the village noticed the change in Beth. Her headaches were gone, she felt free at last, looked 10 years younger. John Norcross had long since guessed her identity—"but he always treated me like a lady anyhow," she told Hannah. The book he came to write was out, he was now at work on another. Beth was happy except for the old haunting dread. "I know any day she may come, Hannah!"

And though Hannah scoffed at the idea, come Mother Townsend did, one day in a blinding snowstorm. Marching into the drugstore she ordered briskly, "I want a cup of hot coffee before I go out to the house for something I left there."

"Beth thought she sent all your things," said Hannah. "You know the house is rented—do the tenants expect you?"

"I called up from the station. A woman answered the phone with a voice just like Beth's. Said it was the housekeeper. Then a man came on—very grumpy too—but I'd like to see him or anyone else keep me from getting my bonds I left in a secret drawer of the desk! See who you can get to drive me out there, Hannah."

On a sudden impulse Hannah said, "I'll take you out. This man is an author and very busy—we'll have to slip in and out quickly."

She dawdled at the desk, with covert glances at John Norcross as he went back to his dictation in the next room. At last she unearthed her bonds. "Let's go now," whispered Hannah.

But the old lady darted into the hall and up the stairs pell-mell to Beth's room. "Just wait while I get a baby picture of Burt!"

Hannah raced after her, but Mother Townsend got there first and burst open the door. "Just what I thought!" she cried shrilly as she discovered Beth. "I knew there was something fishy going on! So this is how you've been disgracing yourself! Now you get that star boarder right out of our house—I'm back here to stay!"

Hannah had heard of worms turning, but now before her eyes she saw a doormat rising. "Oh, no, you're not!" Beth faced her mother-in-law boldly. "This is my house, and next week I'm going to marry that star boarder, as you call him. Good-by, Mother Townsend!"

police officers said to have changed or modified their testimony in court in favor of defendants represented by the lawyers, and jail officials said to have solicited business for them at the Charles st. jail.

Another indication that a startling and far-reaching probe would be conducted came with the offer of Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan last night that he would co-operate with Chief Justice Keniston.

Earlier, Comr. Sullivan had refused to aid in the investigation at the request of the Bar Ass'n on the ground it was a private organization.

"Some time ago," Sullivan said, "I had a telephone call from a person who said he was an attorney representing the association. He asked that Deputy James T. Sheehan be assigned to him for the purpose of probing the conduct of certain members of the bar.

"I informed him I had no right to assign police officers to investigate for private organizations but that if the request was transmitted to me through the office of the attorney general or district attorney I would be pleased to comply with the request.

"COURT HAS POWER"

"If Chief Justice Keniston is making an investigation of any situation, I am quite sure it will be a thorough one, and the services of any officers of the Boston police department that he desires will be made available to him for whatever length of time he deems necessary."

Kaplan, in his report to the chief justice, stated that a preliminary probe by the Bar Ass'n of the charges tended to show they were based on facts, and added:

"It is the opinion of the Bar Ass'n that the instrument best qualified to make the investigation and to take the necessary steps to remedy such evils as may be established is the court itself.

alistic. I sounded out his successor in the field of international views. How about the United Nations? The prospect for permanent world peace?

"I have lost no faith in the United Nations as an instrument for preserving peace, though it will grow slowly and suffer many setbacks.

"Eire has maintained peaceful relations with the world and will continue to do so. America, of course, we deem the staunchest of our friends."

"But do you think world peace is now menaced? Do you feel that Premier Stalin of Russia will be 'manageable,' that other nations really can co-operate with the Soviet?"

"I do indeed feel that we can all deal and trade and get along with Russia," said the new Irish leader.

"You seem to have quite a few communists close to home, and Eire has very few—practically none. We do have our Socialists, and they are numerous and articulate. They play an important role in running the country."

Costello (he told me the name is accented on the second syllable, thus embarrassing a lot of radio commentators) heads the Fine Gael or United Irish party and is known as a conservative.

But he is also a veteran disciple of world unity. After defending many Irishmen in the bloody anti-British uprising of 1916, he represented the Free State at the imperial conferences in London and later at the League of Nations.

DeVALERA POWERFUL

"Mr. DeValera," he finally retorted, and you got the notion he was smiling," remains a very powerful political figure over here. As you must know, he was beaten only by the combined strength of several other factions.

"But his Fianna Fail (soldiers of destiny) party must be reckoned with. This government must find unity in order to survive. Observe my cabinet selections—and you will see the lengths to which I went for unity."

I was a little dubious about mentioning the Marshall Plan since Eire isn't one of the proposed beneficiaries. Premier Costello endorsed it, but his enthusiasm was restrained.

"As I have tried to indicate," he told me, "all of us over here have deep respect for the bounties the world has received at America's hands.

"The Marshall Plan is merely another example of this superb compassion. I feel, that it may be of value in achieving a principal aim—bringing order out of chaos in Europe."

SEEKS ONE EIRE

Prime Minister Costello thought my query on his stand as to Eire uniting with Northern Ireland a bit superfluous, and didn't mind showing it.

"Naturally I'm for this unification," he remarked, "having worked to that end for years. Nevertheless, that is a long-range objective of this government, rather than an immediate one.

"Right now we roll up our sleeves, start economizing, working, producing, putting Eire in shipshape, commercially and economically. After that, time enough for more grandiose schemes."

I made a final effort to lighten up the interview but it wasn't very successful.

I asked Mr. Costello if he approved of the "new look."

He'd never heard of it—and the toll charges ballooned while I explained.

"Oh, long skirts," he said. "Irish girls don't like them. Nor do I."

EASILY the most absorbing screen fare in town is the Kenmore's "Panic," French import starring Viviane Romance.

Ladd's O.K., Veronica, Too, But Plot Lacking in 'Saigon'

Ladd and Lake are a potent marquee lure but "Saigon" the exotically tagged melodrama in which they are presently co-starring on the Met screen, is nothing to do any wish-you-were-here postcarding about.

Frankly, the mystery and thrill and action that the title suggests is all in your own head, the script providing little of the same in the 94-minute unreeling.

"Saigon" your film reporter regrets to state, is a rather sorry travelogue showing how Veronica Lake flicker boss' (Morris Carnovsky) legitimately obtained half-million dollars to Saigon, engages in a name-calling contest with pilot Alan Ladd, winds up walking in him into a prop sunset and mess bliss.

Ladd, recently discharged American Air Force pilot, and his service pal Douglas Dick and Wally Cassell, are to receive $10,000 upon the loot's safe arrival in Saigon. Carnovsky, at takeoff time, was exchanging shots with the Shanghai police and was left behind.

Just outside of Saigon, there is a near-crash but, thanks to Ladd's skill, they make a perfect belly-landing in a rice-paddy. The three men agree it is a miracle they are alive. Miss Lake, though, is only concerned with the necessity of getting fresh clothes (all excess cargo had to be tossed out when the oil gave out) and keeping her brief-case firmly in hand.

Meanwhile, Douglas Dick has fallen in love with her, Ladd wouldn't trust her as far as he could throw her and Luther Adler, a Colonial lieutenant of police who has been tipped off by the Shanghai police, is being obsequious no end to the visiting Americans who'd like to lose him.

Ladd is miles ahead of the company and picture he's in, the script failing to provide him with little more than word-battles with Veronica and the briefest of fisticuff sequences. Casablanca was never like this!!! P. D.

Mills Brothers, at Boston, Still Tops in Melody Field

By PEGGY DOYLE

With that old-shoe ease of theirs, the Mills Brothers sauntered on stage at yesterday's first show at the RKO-Boston Theater and in a trice had hypnotized that notoriously misbehavin' audience into rapt attention.

No matter how many times you hear them, there is never anything jaded or familiar about their performance. They have that extra something, that spark that stacks them up there in the stratosphere away beyond their would-be imitators or alleged competitors.

Their repertoire included "Across the Alley from the Alamo," "'Til Then," "Paper Doll," "You Always Hurt the One You Love," "Lazy River" and "Basin St. Blues." As you may gather, they were show-stopping.

As new to vaudeville and Boston as the Millses are familar are the brash, young and talented Marshall Brothers who cleverly satirize screen and radio personalities. The younger one does a Danny Kaye impression, the first one I've ever caught of that difficult-to-takeoff comedian, and it was very good. His Peter Lorre make-believing is such as to rate a blindfold test. Also very good, I mean.

Yvette a suave songbird with a new look is singing with accustomed competency such pleasantly melancholy tunes as "If I Had My Way," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "Body and Soul" and "I'll be Yours."

Billy Wells and the Fays, with a flashy act of tumbling and contortion stuff, open the show.

Franchot Tone goes the way of many of his handsome Hollywood contemporaries and plays a "private eye" in Columbia's mystery thriller, "I Love Trouble." This is one that is so full of kisses and misses and killers that it demands your entire attention. Worth it? That's a horse of a different Technicolor.

FRANCHOT TONE

Schwartz to Give 'Great Fortune'

Due to requests from his numerous backstage visitors at the Plymouth Theater, Maurice Schwartz will give one performance of the rollicking comedy, "The Great Fortune" by Sholem Aleichem, tomorrow night.

This, therefore, means that "Shylock and His Daughter" will be given its final local performance at tomorrow's matinee.

Mike Sacks on Howard's Gala Midnight Bill

Mike Sachs, favorite burlesque comedian now playing a return engagement at the Old Howard, will share the spotlight with Julia Dorn, Ina Claire, Nadine and Alice Kennedy, another standout in the comedy department, at tonight's big midnight show.

"THE BISHOP'S WIFE," who would be lovely Loretta Young, continues to delight Astor Theater patrons. It is now in its third month.

Bo Shifts Setting On Grid Horizon; This Time as Pro

By AUSTEN LAKE

IN PASSING OVER THE BOURNE from Indiana U to Detroit's pro football Lions, Bo McMillin moves into the $30,000-a-year bracket. I think you could call Bo the Horatio Alger character of football, the nobody-from-nowhere who tickled the fancy of the nation and became prosperous and respected after a raggedy youth.

Alger always wrote about the ragged orphan who saved the town's richest daughter from a fate said to be worse than death and moved along, by honesty and sobriety, to a partnership in the local shoe factory as friendship matured into love and wedded bliss with the wealthy doll. Bo's football career was just like that.

Cycle of Bo's Piety

THERE MAY BE A FEW sentimental old duffers like myself whose memories go back to that deathless afternoon in 1921 when McMillin cut his famous caper in the Harvard Stadium. That was the day that a little cider mill college from Kentucky, Centre by name, gave Harvard an unexpected pushing around—a story that survives in the paperback histories as one of football's imperishable epics.

It was the time when Bo deserted his interference and ran the wrong end for the only touchdown of the game and, among my many souvenirs, is the memory of Bo being hoisted over the heads of the hysterical thousands and being handed bodily from shoulder to shoulder along a solid floor of humanity. And again of seeing Bo that evening wandering hatless in Boston's downtown gloaming and feeding the pigeons on the Common.

He was a naive country kid, full of unexpected pieties. Well, he is a naive man still and I offer him as a pattern of masculine simplicity to the currently complex college kids. Now its my turn to be naive.

The last time I saw Bo, which was in the Hotel New Yorker, he was sitting in a half-moon of sports authors, who were nibbling something in tall glasses—something, I might add, furnished by the hotel management, for Bo has never known stimulants or the weed. So he was telling for the umptieth time how, in the old days, Centre came to be known as the Praying Colonels. Strange how one reverts from the realistic present to an old legend.

So Bo told how in that long ago age Uncle Charley Moran, the former National League umpire who coached the Centre team had risen (only Bo said "rizz," still adhering to the localisms of Texas talk) and remarked just before kick-off time, "Boys, I'm a barnacled old hardshell and I talk langwidge ill-fittin' for polite ears. But I'm a God-fearin' man of heart an' I wonder is there a boy here who knows the right words an'd like to lead a prayer?"

So, Bo said, one of the Centre kids (they say it was Bo himself) arose and breathed a little exhortation in those general terms that ended with "An' please, Lord help us to knock them fellers for a loop." And it worked! Centre beat Texas one that day and the Centre kids held locker room prayer meetings before every game that year. So, said Bo, that was the way they got to be known as the Praying Colonels and set a custom that was copied hither and yon by other colleges of the country. Only, Bo said, the habit of prayer has languished in the intervening years and football men don't turn to the Lord much any more, but prefer to place faith in the college peanut concession and room-and-board scholarships.

But he said he believed in the efficacy of prayer himself and never went onto the field without asking divine guidance in the privacy of his thoughts, though he never has his players kneel down on their leather knee-cups any more.

SOMEBODY ASKED McMILLIN what was the most memorable moment in his football recollections and he said it was the moment when he ran into Harvard's big concrete dimple for the first time. "I guess you can imagine," he said, "how a kid from a little cane-brake college who had only seen handful crowds on wooden bleachers and circus seats, would feel on running into a big stadium, jam-packed with 50,000 people and hear for the first time that ear-deafening, deep throated roar."

So Bo said he had led his little squad into the huge tureen "feelin' mighty small" and looking around at the high walls of yelling, writhing people. He has coached teams since then which played in bigger stadiums before larger crowds, but the tingle of that first experience as he emerged from the Harvard grill work and ran onto the field still stirs his pulses.

Then some other newsman asked how the diminutive "Bo" came to be affixed and he replied that it wasn't much of a story. "The Texas folk used to call everybody Bo, like later they call everybody "pal." So the name somehow stuck and he's Bo to this very day, though his right name is Alvin Nugent McMillin which he hasn't heard for some 35 years.

Well, he said, it was a long "hark back" to the time when he and 20 other kids came to Boston with a fresh change of laundry in cardboard parcels and nothing more than a few silver coins in their pockets and a dollar meal limit in the hotel cafeteria. And looking back he guessed the Lord had been pretty generous since that moment when he got the inspiration to flout football theory that a ball-toter is no better than his interference, and go galloping one way while they galloped 'tuther. Because it was that one little act which lifted him into national prominence and won him the coachship of Centenary's Gentlemen and later at Geneva and Indiana.

So, now in taking the Professional Lions' annual $30,000 Bo closes his Horatio Alger cycle and moves into the banker's class. It crowns what to my kind, is still the best football story of all time, of a cornfield kid who galloped 35 yard to fame and fortune

Yawkey May Give McCarthy More Headaches Than Tea

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (INS)—A number of persons have wondered at considera[ble] length recently over the chances of Joe McCarthy getting along with Ted Williams in [the] expected bright new future of the Boston Red Sox. Strangely, no one seems to h[ave] dwelled at all on the prospects of McCarthy getting along with Tom Yawkey.

Here you have three real bargains if you like your firecrackers primed for immediate explosion when least expected. Or can it be that through some peculiar rearrangement of viewpoints and personalities they will hit it off with nary a word of bitterness like three old troopers fully alert to the importance of their crusade?

Their problem is to maintain Boston's recurrent shattering of gate receipt records, and they won't be able to solve it by family fights likely to convert a potential pennant-winner into a second division club.

Most of the athletes will be assembled by the latter part of next week, and about that time owner Yawkey, Mgr. McCarthy and Williams will engage in a nice friendly exchange of pleasantries relative to the coming season

All the players will pass greetings back and forth and welcome their new manager with those sweet, shy smiles which ball players reserve for their managers especially tough ones like McCarthy.

In fact, everything will be honky-donky unless Williams happens to make his initial appearance for practice with a creel of snook slung over his shoulder.

He fished in Minnesota until the blizzards began to whistle right through his skinny frame, then he headed straight for the Florida Everglades, and from his fishing camp will report for training.

The lanky slugger who did so many things so superlatively at bat last season follows fishing as a sort of obession, second only to his love for hitting. Nuts to that fielding.

What they ought to do is dig a lake at Fenway Park. You take your turn at bat, then go fishing until its time to hit again. But McCarthy would never consent to that.

It is minor things of that kind which may lead to dissension. Williams is used to having his own way. McCarthy demands hustle and expects orders to be obeyed.

But even though he won, he didn't last at Chicago. His great record with the Jake Ruppert-Ed Barrow regime wasn't enough to keep him in New York after Larry MacPhail took over.

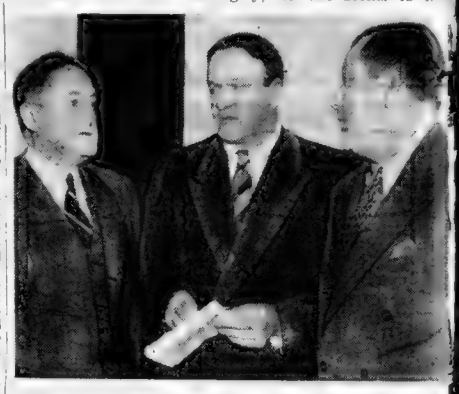
Now it's Boston and Yawkey, with Joe Cronin in as general manager.

Cronin didn't want to be manager of the club any more, with all that scuffling and bouncing around. He will be all right - complacent, fat and a big cigar.

But Yawkey may be just a trifle difficult.

DODGERS' COX SIGNS

BROOKLYN, Feb. 20 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the signing of shortstop Billy Cox, bringing the number of players under contract to 27 and leaving only 13 still to agree to terms.



TROUBLE AHEAD? Joe McCarthy chats pleasantly with Jo[e] Cronin and Tom Yawkey (right) at major league meeting[s]. Everything was hunky-dory then. But will McCarthy and Yawke[y] love each other in September? Lawton Carver doubts it.

AAU Spotlight Falls on 600 With Dodds, Karver Missing

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (INS)—An advance guard of [the] 600 entries for the national indoor track and field champi[on]ships was due in New York today, with only the ailing [Gil] Dodds and national outdoor champion Gerry Karver notable absentees.

Dodds, who in late January ran to a world indoor record 4:05 3-10 mile on the same track where tomorrow night's games will be held, was convalescing in Boston from a recent attack of mumps

Karver furthr decimated the one-mile field by withdrawing in order to compete against Notre Dame in another week-end meet.

Their absence left Michigan State's Bill Mack a pronounced favorite to take the mile title. He was second to Dodds in both last year's championships and his record mile this year

Fifteen title events are listed on the championship program, with top interest shifting from the mile to the 600-yard run.

Among its 45 entries are defending champion George Guido, Villanova, and Herb McKenley, outdoor champion and worlds 440-yard record holder who will represent Jamaica in the Olympic games.

Bay State Schoolsters Depart for Nationals

The seven local delegates to the national interscholastic track meet, which will be staged in Madison Square Garden tomorrow, left South Station this afternoon [for] the field of battle.

Outstanding among the group [is] Paul Pittman, Lynn Class[ical] sprinter, who will be gunning [for] the 60-yard dash crown and a [new] indoor record

Roach-Thornton Bout On Tonight in Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb [20] (AP)—Mild weather was fore[cast] for the 10-round boxing ma[tch] here tonight between Lave[rne] Roach of Plainview, Tex., and [Al] Thornton of Rochester, Pa

The fight was postponed fr[om] last night because of "threateni[ng] weather." The night turned o[ut] to be perfect.

SIX GIANTS UNSIGNED

Health Certificate Must Accompany Steeds to Suffolk

By JACK CONWAY

SUFFOLK DOWNS will co-operate with the Massachusetts Department of Animal Husbandry to make the barn area 100 per cent sanitary so that there will be no danger of swamp fever or any other disease striking down splendid thoroughbreds, Judge John Pappas declared at a round table discussion on racing.

"No horse will be permitted to enter Suffolk Downs unless he has a good health certificate," Judge Pappas stated he was informed by Dr. Shannon of the Massachusetts Department of Animal Husbandry. "This is the kind of co-operation we wish. By protecting the other horses at the track against possible disease, the public and the track are also protected."

Q—Are any other health precautions for horses being taken, Judge?

A—I'll let Billy Almy answer that question.

(Almy) We are going to fumigate each stall with a steam heat process. The heat will be so intense it will kill any germs. We shall also use D. D. T. With only horses with certificates of good health being allowed on the track, and with the stalls all in perfect condition, we shall be able to give the thoroughbreds the most possible protection.

Q—What will be done at Suffolk Downs, Judge, to make things more comfortable for the spectators?

A—(Pappas) We have received permission to have a walk cut the mutuels in the grandstand in two. This will make it easier for people going from one side of the long grandstand to the other side.

Schneider Brothers to Get Concessions

WE ARE also going to build new stands for food and drinks sold in the grandstand. They will be modern, up-to-date stands. We also would have liked to put in a new restaurant in the grandstand like the one at Monmouth Park, N. J. There the restaurant extends along the entire rear of the grandstand with small setups with stools, enabling the track to furnish good service quickly.

Q—Who will operate the restaurants at Suffolk Downs this year?

A—(Pappas) We have been talking with Joe and Max Schneider of Steubens, and it looks as if they will get the contract.

Q—How much money did Suffolk Downs get from the Simons Co. last year?

A—(Pappas) $200,000. It was a flat guarantee. We did not operate on a percentage basis, and we do not intend to do so this year. We shall insist that the new people give the best in food and at a reasonable price. In line with our determination to see that the various restaurants and eating places at the track give the best in food and drink, we shall have one of our offices checking the entire food and drink operation. We may appoint a new officer for this specific job.

It is also our plan to have flower boxes placed in the clubhouse, Paddock Club and in other locations at the track. These flower boxes will be six feet long and they will contain seasonable flowers. We shall also glass in some of the clubhouse boxes which will make them more comfortable on cool days, and also give their occupants privacy.

Improvements Planned in Paddock Club

Q—I WOULD LIKE Jules Haller to inform us of any changes planned in the Paddock Club.

A—(Haller) We shall make the Paddock Club more comfortable for our members. It is our intention to increase the membership fee from $100 to $200. We consider this a moderate charge for what we offer in view of the fact it will be a 72-day meeting. Club house tickets for the same length of time would cost $144.

We are going to make alterations in the Paddock Club which will make it unnecessary for our members to pass through the restaurant on their way into our quarters. We also intend to relocate the bar, make it longer and place it in a spot where those at the bar will have privacy.

Q—I have often heard it said, Jules, that the members of the Paddock Club did not equal the per capita betting of persons in other parts of the track.

(Haller) I do not believe that is so.

(Pappas) I would say from the figures I have seen that Paddock Club members bet as much money as persons who see the races from the clubhouse. The number of big bettors in the Paddock Club has increased. We are going to paint our entire plant gold and blue, the Suffolk Downs colors.

(Wilson) Must get packing my bags. I am on my way to Santa Anita.

(Almy) I must hurry, too. I am Florida bound.

(In the Boston Sunday Advertiser, Jack Conway will make a suggestion that should interest thousands of persons who go to Suffolk Downs.)

Bay State Ice Stars Mix With Easmass Elite at Arena

By PAT HORNE

The 11th annual clash between the All-Stars of the Eastern Mass. and Bay State Hockey Leagues will be staged at the Arena tomorrow afternoon (2 p. m.). The players on each team were selected earlier this week by a board of coaches from each loop.

The Lexington delegates will be Capt. Armstrong, Bob Hosford and Ray Brooks. Co-Captains of the Dedham sextet, Dick McDonough and Fran Nee, along with Alan Hurst, make up the trio of first-stringers of the league's third place club.

The remainder of the 15 man squad will be Donald McIver, and Gus Estes of Natick; Leo Delory, Wakefield; Dick Beauregard, Hudson; John England, Somerville and Bob Carroll of Brookline.

Of the 15 positions open on the Bay State All-Star team, Watertown grabbed off six. The "Townies," who captured the league flag, placed their entire starting club on the "All" team.

The sextet of Watertown players named were, Art Shannon, Fred Lochiatto, Ted Tocci, Pete Hullihan, Jack Carey and Henry Kasbarian.

Walpole, the league's runner-up, will be represented by Stan Moore, Ed Baldassari, Joe Morgan and Charlie Matanis.

Tom Madden will be the lone representative from Framingham, as will Henry Trusevitch of Norwood, Al Keefe of Needham, George Sullivan of B. C. High and Dave Bell of Waltham.

Wellesley is the only team which failed to place a man on the first squad and landed only one on the second team.

The Easmass All-Stars will be piloted by Malden's Charley McGeoch and Coach Joe Murphy will lead the Bay State aggregation. Both coaches led their sexets to the top of the pile in the recently completed campaign.

The Bay State team is loaded with power since it has been a high scoring league throughout the season. Outstanding on the list is Watertown's Art Shannon, a member of last years "All" squad, the league's high scorer, with 20 points, and a stylish center-ice man.

Stan Moore of Walpole, only one point behind Shannon for scoring honors.

Fran Nee of Dedham will be skating for his fourth and final year as a member of the Easmass All-Stars. Don McIver of Natick, the loop's leading lamp lighter, is another standout.

Both teams are laden with power and defensive strength which is all that is necessary for a terrific game.

Celts in Hub After Losing In Baltimore

The Boston Celtics, back [illegible] from their trip to Baltimore where they lost, 79-76, in overtime, will work out on the Boston Arena floor tonight before the college twin bill in preparation for the Chicago Stags. It will mark the third game of the series on the St. Botolph st. court and to date Boston has not lost a game on that floor.

Mike Bloom will be rested because of an injured heel. Bloom played against Baltimore with the injured member and Russell intends to have his new big man in the best shape possible for the Chicago contest.

Russell will send George Mikan out to challenge the Stags great sharpshooter, Max Zaslofsky.

In submitting to the Bay for the fourth straight time in many starts this campaign, Celts still need half a game to clinch a playoff spot. While they were taking 1 on the chin, Providence Steam Rollers, a team they are attempting to eliminate from the playoffs, lost to St. Louis, 78-69.

Big Ed Sadowski, the Celtic leading scorer, again topped his mates with 33 points but it was Saul Mataschin mid court set shot that put the locals back in the game.

With seconds remaining and the score 70-68 in favor of Baltimore, the former Harvard captain threw a long heave that found the mark just as the gong sounded ending regulation play and sending the clubs into overtime.

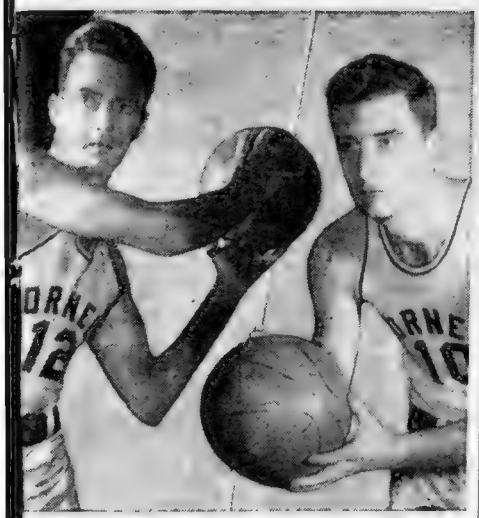
BOSTON and MAINE RAILROAD "MINUTE MAN SERVICE"



GALES BEHIND CORNELL—Jim, left, and Capt. Bob Gale, brothers on the Cornell basketball team, will be out to blow down Harvard tonight at the Arena. Holy Cross will meet Boston University in the other half of the college twin bill.

HC Five 'Up' for BU Game

Holy Cross, winner of 11 straight basketball games since getting off to an ordinary early season start, will meet Boston University in the first of two hoop games at Boston Arena tonight. Harvard meets Cornell, 57-45 winner earlier this term, in the second game.

HC will take the BU game more seriously than it did the Boston College meeting last Tuesday. BU, playing on the same Tuesday card, showed improved form by thumping William and Mary's. At the best, HC could be termed only ordinary against the Eagles.

"Doggie" Julian, HC coach, knows that his team has a very strong chance of moving into the NCAA tournament at New York having won the NCAA title last year. On paper, the team is stronger today. But teams are subject to let-downs, and Julian feels that HC, down for BC, will be back in stride for the Terriers.

A year ago BU gave the Crusaders quite a bit of trouble. The game was close, HC winning in the last moments, 36 to 34.

Coach Ross Peterson of the Terriers will follow B. C.'s strategy and will set a man-to-man zone defense in an attempt to halt the Crusaders.

"Naturally, I'm going to use a zone," Peterson stated, "but we're going to keep pressing all the time and will be out to win this one."

The "Miracle Kids" of Worcester saw Bob Daley, a Charlestown boy, score 27 points for BU against William and Mary. They were impressed.

It is almost traditional for an Ivy League team to be one of the contenders in the NCAA tournament. Columbia had the inside track, but their recent loss to Princeton has changed the situation. Now Cornell has a grand opportunity to close in on the Lions.

Cornell must defeat Harvard, then beat Dartmouth tomorrow night. This accomplished they would gain national recognition as one of the possibilities for a NCAA berth.

Boxer Critical After Removal Of Blood Clot

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20 (AP) —A Philadelphia lightweight boxer is in a critical condition following an operation for removal of a blood clot from his brain.

Leroy Johnson, 18-year-old brother of Clarence (Honey Chile) Johnson, collapsed and fell unconscious last Tuesday while training for a scheduled bout with Jimmy Sulla here last night.

Dr. Michael Scott removed the blood clot that night. A week ago Dr. Scott performed a similar operation on Ed Franklin, Philadelphia heavyweight who collapsed at the end of a fight with Bill (Chicken) Thompson. Franklin's condition was described as good by the hospital.

Columbia Swimmers Duel Harvard Here

The Crimson swimming team, undefeated in six meets, will duel Columbia at the Harvard Indoor Pool tonight at 8:15.

Ted Norris, winner of the NAAU long distance title last summer, is the high point man for Harvard. He is expected to take the 220 and 440-yard freestyle races.

'Skiing Room Only' Sign At Every Resort on Holiday

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

With the three-day Washington's Birthday week-end at hand, the "S. R. O." sign—"skiing room only"—is out at nearly every ski center in New England, the date heralding the proverbial peak of the season. Hundreds of thousands of enthusiasts will pursue the pastime on their slippery slats, the exodus to the mountains starting late this afternoon, by train, plane, bus and auto.

Snow conditions, on the whole, are fair to good at the various schuss spots. During the day, a granular surface—or good old "corn snow"—prevails on slopes and trails, providing the necessary medium for control and enjoyable running. The weatherman claims that there isn't any snow in sight for a few days, but one never knows!

Enough of the "celestial dandruff" is also found on local hills and tow slopes, although 'twill receive a terrific hammering this week-end. The rolling terrain in the vicinity of the Groton Country Club may prove to be one of the best bets for stay-at-homes; while Locke's Hill, Amesbury, is covered with granular snow . . . Hint: If you really want to have a bit of fun, away from the Christying crowds, try a hill that is devoid of a tow or lift.

Among the USEASA sanctioned events on the competitive card are the New Hampshire Class C championships, downhill and slalom, sponsored by the Golfstown Outing Club, on Uncanoonuc Mountain, Sunday; the third annual husband and wives' invitation slalom, run by Boston's Schussverein Club, on Giles Hill, Jackson, N. H., also on the Sabbath, and the Cross Country and Jumping tourney, held by the Pineland Ski Club, at Andover, Me., tomorrow and Sunday.

QUICK CHRISTIES: That "skiingest of ski clubs," the Lynn Snow Chasers, will head for the Rangeley Lakes area, of Maine, this week-end. Included on the program are a club slalom race, a mock Easter Parade on skis, a big dance, and a tall story contest . . . The regular weekly slalom contests will take place on Sunday, for both men and women . . . To date, Rangeley has entertained 402 per cent more skiers than during the entire 1946-'47 season! . . . Skiing will continue at this center for at least six more weeks, for the heaviest snowfall there usually occurs between now and the end of March.

An advanced slalom school will be held at Pico Peak, Vt., March 8-13. The classes will be limited to 10 individuals to be chosen from applications addressed to: Mrs. Janet Mead, Pico Peak, Rutland, Vt.

Frick Refuses Further Word On Rickey Cas

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, squirmed in his tuxedo at the Statler last night when he was asked to clarify the recent Branch Rickey-Jackie Robinson affair. Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said earlier this week that the other major league clubs had attempted to halt the rise of the colored baseball player, Robinson, to the big leagues.

"I have no comment on the matter," said Frick with a tone of finality. "That sort of thing can be discussed lightly.

"Rickey seems to be backing down on the whole subject. I really am unable to add further comment on the situation. It does not come under the jurisdiction of my office as league president."

Frick was in Boston to address the New England Traffic Club. He later went to the Hotel Lenox where he spoke to the graduating class, a group of the Catholic Youth Organization's baseball umpires' school.

Frick was asked about Leo Durocher, the re-instated manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I had three long talks with Durocher earlier this season," stated Frick. "He has satisfied me that he intends to stick to baseball.

"He's just another ball player as far as I'm concerned. I am sure that his conduct will be a credit to the National League.

"I am not laying down a special set of rules for Durocher," continued Frick, "but in the event that Leo does anything out of the way I will be the first one to call him."

He then said that he could not comment further on either subject.

Tired Olympics Come Home For 2 Games Over Week-end

The Boston Olympics, tired to the breaking point, are back in town for two games. They are attempting a rugged schedule, playing in two different hockey leagues at the same time, the Quebec Senior and the Eastern Amateur loop. Subsequently, they are not doing well in either league.

The Pics will meet the league-leading Montreal Royals, Saturday night at the Arena in a Quebec League game, and, on Monday, they wil meet the New York Rovers on the same ice in a game which counts in the standing of both leagues. Confusing?

Tony Nemanick, who took over the net duties when Pat Boehmer went to Hershey, has helped the Pics. He hails from Eveleth, Minn.

Al Shill has had the grippe but is expected to get the green light for the weekend games.

DORCHESTER BOY WITH BROOKLYN

Brooklyn believes it has another Bruce Edwards in 20-year-old Joe Murphy of Dorchester. The youngster will train with Edwards and the other Dodgers at Vero Beach, Fla., beginning March 1.

Murphy graduated from Hyde Park High in '45. He captained the baseball team and was an all-scholastic choice. Brooklyn sent him to Zanesville, O., in the Mid-Atlantic League in '46 and he was first string catcher there.

The next two years he spent in the Marines and did the catching for the base nine at San Diego.

Now he's a civilian again, intent on making the big league grade within a year or two. One thing: He's starting with a champion.

Michigan Plan To Be Followed By Art Valpey

By EDGAR HAYES

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 20—Harvard football fans will see the same style of football in 1948 that carried Michigan to a national championship last year.

The new Crimson coach, Arthur Ludgate Valpey, is sold hook, line and sinker on the style, system and technique used by Coach Fritz Crisler here at Ann Arbor. And for good reason. First, it has been extremely successful during Crisler's 10 years at Michigan. Second, it is very popular with the fans as noted by the sellouts week after week when the Wolverines play.

With this in mind, Valpey has been hunting for assistants who are well schooled in the Crisler system and undoubtedly the three he takes east with him will all be Michigan graduates.

"Organization is one of the biggest reasons for the success of Michigan's team," Valpey said in discussing his coaching plans for Harvard. "I want to attain the same degree of proficiency that Crisler enjoys in this and if I do I'm sure we'll be ou the right road."

Here is a typical schedule in the day of the Michigan coaching staff, the schedule Valpey will likely try to follow. The head coach arrives in his office at 8 o'clock and spends a half hour reading his mail, signing papers and making necessary phone calls. This is all the time he can give each day to the office detail.

At 8:30 the staff gathers in a little office on the second floor of the athletic department. There's a long table and the head coach sits at one end. Along the sides are ranged the line coach, backfield coach, end coach and a couple of other assistants.

Blackboard lines one side of the room and the motion picture projector is set for instant use.

The door is never opened until noon except occasionally the head coach will send for a freshman coach or a scout to give a special report. At noon the session breaks up for lunch. The staff is not scattered around, they all go together to a quaint old hamburger stand that's part of a gasoline station out on the highway some five miles from town.

At 1 o'clock the meeting is reconvened and continues until time for practice on the field. Anyone who wants a word with the coach awaits at the door of the dressing room. If he's welcomed, the coach will invite him in to talk while he changes into football garb.

On the field every coach knows just what to do every minute of the time. During the afternoon they ask for their appropriation of time needed to accomplish some particular task. The head coach drifts from one group to another offering a word of advice or encouragement.

Then there is the general workout presided over by the head coach.

After dinner there is another session. More movies, more scout reports, more discussion of personnel, both yours and the opposition.

All during these meetings the head coach makes notes. The plan of attack adopted and the defensive campaign mapped are all written down in detail. The comment from the various coaches on the players is recorded.

Every night the head coach takes this home and adds them to the pile he has in his den. The notes of each day are clipped together and placed next to the previous day's report.

This is a rigorous schedule but it pays off in well coached teams and well coached teams win a lot of ball games. It's the schedule Valpey knows best and the one he hopes to use at Harvard.

TOMORROW—The final article on Art Valpey's plans for the Harvard football

GOING UP—Joe Murphy, Dorchester, and fiance Marie Gaudreau, do some celebrating before Murphy shoves off for Southland. He's a catcher, just 20, who has been signed by Brooklyn Dodgers.

Orioles' Manager Warns Minors of Big Salaries

BALTIMORE, Feb. 20 (AP)—Tommy Thomas, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, warned minor league ball players "the war's over" and advised them to forget "fabulous" salary demands.

"They've got to remember that in the minor leagues we can pay only minor league salaries," Thomas said. "I understand managers all over the country are running into the same high demands."

Plan Annual 'Babe Ruth Day' in Delinquency Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (INS)—"Babe Ruth"—a magic name which struck fear into pitchers' hearts and dollar signs onto baseball cash-boxes—may once again prove a national magnet this time in the fight against juvenile delinquency.

Emory C. Perry, Chicago businessman and lifelong friend of the Babe, has announced he will campaign for an annual "Babe Ruth Day" throughout organized baseball—with a gate receipts share to be allocated to the Babe Ruth Foundation.

It is generally accepted that the plan already has been outlined to Commissioner A. B. Chandler—and approved.

Last year, baseball honored Ruth. Ball parks all over the country—big-league to Class D league—celebrated a "day" for baseball's great figure.

That day, in Yankee Stadium—the "House that Ruth Built"—a hoarse, weazened caricature of the once-powerful man thanked baseball and Ted Casey, wrestled America."

Today, Ruth is in Florida, trying to "bake" a torturing nerve in his neck—a neck which has undergone the scalpel three times in the past year.

ARMED TO RACE ASSAULT IN $50,000 WIDENER

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP)—Armed will face Assault in the $50,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah Park tomorrow. The name of the 7-year-old Calumet Farm gelding was tossed into the entry box today after he went six furlongs in 1:12.1 It easily was his best workout of the winter.

Seven others also were entered for the mile and a quarter classic.

Armed and Assault met for the first time in the $100,000 Belmont Special last summer. Armed galloped to victory. Assault was reported off form at the time. Since then there has been a clamor for a second meeting.

Trainer Jimmy Jones said earlier if Armed was entered he would go to the post.

Armed and Assault will carry 130 pounds each. Armed is expected to be ridden by Jockey Doug Dodson, who was aboard when he won the Widener the last two years. However, Dodson was not named when Armed was entered.

Calumet has been using another jockey, Al Snider, but Dodson always has been aboard Armed. Eddie Arcaro is expected from California this afternoon to ride Assault.

Others entered in the race were D. Lamont's El Mono, 112; Sunshine Stable's Let's Dance, 111; Circle M's Riskolater, 111; Joe Tucci's Incline, 110; Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld's Cable, 108; Bermill Farm's Bug Juice, 107, and E. E. Boynow's Stud Poker, 100.

Assault will be a favorite after his sensational workouts of the last 10 days. He probably will go to the post about 7-5, and Armed, 9-5.

Assault breezed to victory in a tuneup last Saturday and had a spectacular workout Wednesday at the Widener distance, covering the mile and a quarter in 2:04 2-5 with ease.

Armed finished third in the McLennan Saturday, but experts contend he was not disgraced. The gelding lost ground at the clubhouse turn and was in tight quarters all the way down the back stretch. At the head of the home stretch he had to go to the outside to make his run.

El Mono, winner of the McLennan, covered the mile and a furlong in 1:48 2-5, only one-fifth off the track record.

MacPhail Defers Reply to Rickey

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP)—Larry MacPhail, former president of the New York Yankees baseball team, did not make himself available for a press conference today, but was expected to issue a statement later bearing on the subject of Negroes in the major leagues.

MacPhail was expected to reply to Branch Rickey's address made at Wilberforce, O.

Navy Backfield Coach Gets Virginia Tech Job

Athletic director L. (Monk) Younger, in make the announcement, said McNeish will receive a three-year contract.

Young Asks Pound of Flesh, Gets Most of It From Jack

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (INS)—Terry Young, rough East Side slugger, demanded a pound of flesh today from Beau Jack, former world lightweight champion, and almost got it. He finally settled for ¾ pound at the weigh-in for tonight's 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Young scaled 137½ and Beau Jack 141¼, but the latter was forced to go into an unscheduled session of shadow boxing for a half hour after he first had weighed in at 142.

Young and his handlers looked at the latter figure and insisted that the contracts called for 140 pounds, give or take a pound, and what did Beau Jack plan to do about it?

Chick Wergeles, manager of Beau Jack with a possible shot at welterweight champion Ray Robinson's title hanging in the balance, screamed but ordered the former Georgia shoe shine boy to start working.

He was accepted at 141¼, and said he didn't know anything about any weight agreement because the match originally was made with Billy Graham at 147 pounds. Graham was injured and Young installed as his substitute.

Beau Jack said a big breakfast put weight on him but that he would be all right tonight—and the odds reflected this confidence. The price on him to beat Young had increased to 3 to 1 and probably will go higher.

Indiana Accepts Bo's Resignation
